PSU Students Select For Nittany Lion Classic

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER — When you hear the name Nittany Lion Fall Classic, you may get the impression we are about to report on an upcoming Pennsylvania State University football game. But read on. PSU students and a member of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association staff invaded Lancaster County Wednesday to select cattle for a dairy cattle sale sponsored jointly by the PSU Dairy Science Club and the State Holstein Association.

This sale to be held October 31 at the Ag Arena in State College has become an annual event that gives students the hands-on experience of working with professionals at the PHA and the opportunity to be involved in a learning experience of business management and every other detail related to a top quality holstein sale.

In addition, the Nittany Lion Fall Classic has become known for the support of noted holstein breeders in their consignments and the quality of cattle that have gone through this sale. For example, a very good animal went Excellent right after last year's sale. And during the farm visits this week, an animal that was sold two years ago in the Classic was reported to have gone Very Good and made an outstanding record as a two year old.

Kim Kriebel, sale chairman; Rusty Russell, assistant sale chairman and Michele Campbell, sale committee; all from the PSU Dairy Science Club joined Jeff

These participants in the selection of sale entries for the Nittany Lion Fall Classic took a moment break for this photo Wednesday and gathered around the Spring Belle cow that is the dam of their bred heifer consignment and is a daughter of the 17-year-old foundation cow of the herd. Sheep Producers Seek Queen

The Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association is once again seeking candidates for the Lamb and Wool Queen, to be crowned at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition in Harrisburg, Oct. 2 to 6.

Druck, Eaton Are York 4-H Steer Show Winners

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK — A growthy bred-and-owned purebred Simmental topped the York Fair's 4-H steer show for exhibitor Joe Druck.

It was the first time to take the prestigious purple rosette for Druck, a 17-year-old York R2 4-H'er, and York Fair beef exhibitor for seven years. Born July, 1985, the blocky beef easily outweighed competitors born several months previous.

In the reserve champion spot was John Eaton, Jr., Windsor R1. His Chi-Angus cross was born in April, 1985, and was purchased in the 1985 Donald Walters family club calf sale. At the York 4-H Fair in July, Eaton's "Rocky 4" had taken the champion honors.

4-H Breeding
Beef

Jennifer Calderazzo's Angus senior calf topped its age division, then got the judge's nod for breed champion as the 4-H breeding beef took center stage Sunday in the York Fair's Livestock Arena.

"Premier Lass", born May, 1985, was bred by Premier Angus Farms, and purchased by the 10-year-old, second-year 4-H member. At the 4-H Preview Show in Joe Paterno, center, Penn State football coach, and Beth Heald, Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess, discuss the replica rotating milk can presented to the Penn State football team because they won their game with Temple University last Saturday evening.

Don Duncan, chairman of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Committee also presented a $1,000 check to Paterno for the Penn State University Academic Student Scholarship Fund. The check was given in the name of quarterback John Shaffer who was named the most valuable player of the game. Penn State won the football game 45 to 15.

Paterno said they would prominently display the milk can trophy and "brag a bit about how they won it."

A duplicate milk can trophy will be presented at the Penn State,Pittsburgh game later this year.

DHIA Discusses The Future

BY MARY MAXWELL
Centre Co. Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE— Delegates from 48 county Dairy Herd Improvement Associations attended the third annual state meeting in State College recently. This group represents 6,150 dairy herds in Pennsylvania.

"United We Stand" was the theme of this year's two-day conference. Dick Barth, Pennsylvania DHIA general manager, remarked, "The well known saying 'United We Stand, Divided We Fall" also expresses a truth about the future of DHIA. In order to prosper," continued Barth, "our organization must find ways to meet the challenges of the changing economics in dairying. A united effort toward common purposes becomes vitally important to the health of DHIA."

Dick Sechrist, executive secretary for National DHIA, speaking on the future of DHIA said, "Changes may have to occur in this organization if the future needs of the members are to be met. What began as a loosely-knit organization promoting milk testing and using the Babcock test in the milk house or back porch was now evolved into a highly sophisticated, computer-assisted business organization testing today's milk in central laboratories."

Sechrist believes that National and Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Associations must build on the early work and success of their organizations to prepare for the inevitable changes to come. He feels that by the 21st century consumption of dairy

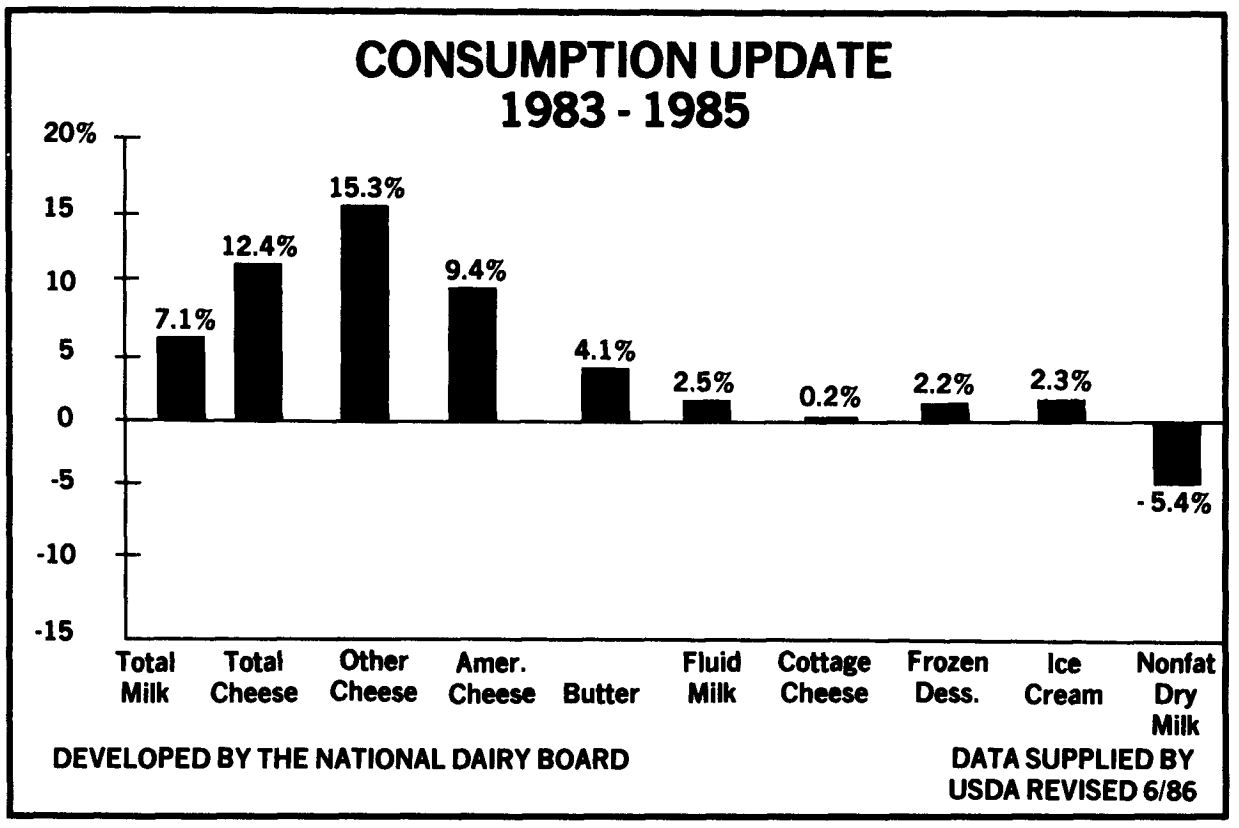
GOOD NEWS - MILK CONSUMPTION UP



Congratulations - Your advertising efforts are starting to get the job done. Based on U.S.D.A. statistics, the trend over the last two years has been extremely encouraging. Fluid milk commercial disappearance is up by 1.5% in the most recent year and 2.5% over two years ago. Cheese use is up by 4.1% in the latest year and up by 12.4% over the same period two years ago. When all dairy product consumption is added up as a total milk figure, the increases are 3.6% over 1984 and 7.1% over 1983. These figures represent the strongest trend of increased consumption of dairy products in recent history.

PENNFIELD DAIRY PROGRAMS SAVE FEED $ $ $

Pennfield Dairy Feeding Programs are balanced to make maximum use of homegrown forages which gives the dairyman the most cost effective dairy feeding program.

PENNFIELD TESTING LAB - LANCASTER

NIR provides fast and accurate forage results.

Wet chemistry is used to insure NIR accuracy.

ADF (acid detergent fiber) and NDF (neutral detergent fiber) are used to determine available energy from forages.

Forages and water samples are checked for the presence of nitrates when requested.

NO CHARGE FORAGE TESTING:

The primary job at Pennfield's Testing lab is the accurate testing of the feed ingredients used to make Pennfield feeds. You can not consistently make a quality feed unless you know the analysis of the ingredients to be used. Pennfield uses the feed testing equipment to process over 5,000 forage samples annually.

OPINION

Harvest Time Can Be Hazardous To Your Health

You're inclined to think it can't happen to you. It's only your neighbor who might get his hand in the forage harvester or get a leg caught in the corn picker. Not you. But your neighbor probably has the same thoughts. And farm accidents don't always happen to someone else, especially around harvest time.

Hundreds of farmers are killed each year during the rush to get crops in. And thousands more suffer disabilities and injuries that cause expensive lost time.

In a few weeks, we will be reminded of this problem during National Farm Safety Week (September 21 to 27). But it's appropriate that we provide this word of caution now as we enter the harvest season.

PTO shafts represent one of the greatest hazards. To avoid becoming entangled in them, replace or install guards on all power shafts. Shut off the power and take out the key before unclogging, adjusting or servicing harvesting heads, cutters, power drives and other dangerous machinery parts. Also shut off the power and take out the key to prevent injury from the unloading auger before entering the combine grain tank.

Follow a no "riders" policy on all farm equipment. Make sure children and nonworkers are off of and away from machinery before starting up. Place blocks or stands under the header before working underneath it. Don't rely on hydraulic pressure to hold it up. Always lower the header for safety when parking a machine. Display a slow moving vehicle emblem and use flashing lights to make road travel safer. Be sure the loading auger is in the transport position.

Ron Jester from the University of Delaware Extension Department says that "a serious accident could cost more than your harvest. Don't lose a lifetime trying to save a few minutes. Many farm accidents that cause injuries and fatalities can be prevented. Safety isn't a time consuming liability," Jester suggests. "It's an asset that speeds up progress."

Many farm accident victims work alone and are not found for hours after an accident. Access to an emergency communication system can sometimes make the difference between life and death. Install two way radios in tractors, trucks and self propelled equipment and establish a means of SOS communication on the farm, such as hand signals, horns or flairs. Monitor one another. Check periodically to see that all is well. Take mid morning and mid afternoon snacks to workers. Not only to provide a rest period but also to check on them. Tell someone where you'll be working and approximately when you will be back.

Children also need protection. They are vital, fun loving, curious and eager to enter the grown up world. But unfortunately many children won't have the chance to realize their potential because they will be victims of farm accidents before they grow up.

About one in three persons (over 30,000 annually) killed accidently in the U.S. is under age 25. In fact, statistics show that accidents are the leading cause of death in this country for people from one to 38 years of age.

Jester says that farm children are often exposed to work place hazards. Many become victims of accidents involving farm machinery, livestock, chemicals and other tools of the trade. All a farm child needs to do is run out the back door to encounter occupational hazards from farm machinery, the farm shop, the animals, the stock watering tanks, the silos and bins and the electrical equipment around the farm. Although small children don't usually help with the work. They often are allowed in farm work areas to watch and to play, and sometimes children are allowed to ride along. Farm children often want to be big like Daddy. But farm parents have an especially large responsibility to protect their children from unnecessary hazards by keeping an eye on them and knowing what they are doing.

Certainly, accidents do happen. But lets work together to insure the safest year possible during harvest time this year in Lancaster Farming Terriotory. We'll all be so glad we did when Thanksgiving rolls around on November 27.

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agriculture Agent

To Observe National Farm Safety Week

The proclamation of September 21 to 27 as National Farm Safety Week is very important during this busy corn harvest and fall grain planting season.

"Be Protected from the Unexpected," the 1986 theme for the farm safety campaign, stresses the need for preventive safety measures. People who operate and work on farms suffer more than their share of personal and economic loss from accidents and work-related illnesses. Much of this loss could be avoided if people would not only work and drive safely, but also take the extra steps to protect themselves ahead of time from potential hazards.

Agriculture remains among the nation's three most hazardous major industries in terms of accidental deaths according to Nationai Safety Council figures. Mining and the construction industry are the other two most hazardous fields.

To Be Aware of the Century Farm Program

The Century Farm Program is aimed at recognizing the efforts of Pennsylvania's farm families which have preserved the tradition of the rural heritage of the pioneer farm.

The program was started as part of the Nation's bicentennial observance in 1976, but is being continued for its value in promoting the ideals of the family farm and the importance of farming to Pennsylvania's economy.

To be eligible for certification as a Pennsylvania Century Farm, a farm must have been owned by the same family for the last 100 consecutive years, and a family member must currently reside on the land. In addition, the farm must consist of ten or more acres of the original holdings or gross at least $1,000 a year from the sale of agriculture products.

We encourage you to participate in this program that is administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Applications are available at the County Extension Office.

To Check Ventilation Systems

We are in a time of year when ventilation is very important, and understanding the principles of the basic farm laws are critical to understanding our ventilation systems — and why we should do some things and why some things cost us money. Theere are three basic fan principles:

(1) "As we vary the speed of a fan the volume of air varies in direct proportion." It is a one-to-one ratio — if we double the speed of a fan, we can double the capacity of air. We could do this by changing pulleys but do not do this, as the fan systems are designed as received by you. Principles 2 and 3 will explain.

(2) "As you vary the speed (volume) of the fan, the pressure varies by the square." In other words, if you double the speed of the fan by changing a pulley, the pressure would go up four times. The reverse is also true. If you restrict the inlets, raising the static pressure, you slow the fans down.

(3) "As you vary the speed (volume) of the fan, the power varies by the cube." So if you double the speed of the fan, it would take eight times the power to do it. Power in this case is electricity — so you can see from motors burning out if you change pulleys or a shutter sticks shut creating too much back pressure.

Give these fan principles some thought, for efficient ventilation and in some cases, the safety of birds and animals.

To Mow Weedy Pastures

If your pasture is weedy, get out the mower. There are two good reasons for this; one, it eliminates the production of weed seeds and two, it removes mature forage which lets plants send out new and tender growth.

But, before you mow, you should graze the pasture heavily so as to utilize all the available food. The animals eat some weeds, but they also eat some of the tall grasses that would be wasted by mowing. Remember, to mow closely — 2 to 3 inches. And instead of trashing the clippings, use them. Many farmers recover enough hay from pasture mowing to winter feed some of their cattle.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W ALTHOUSE

GOD'S POT OF GOLD

September 14, 1986

Background Scripture: Genesis 9:1-15
Devotional Reading: Psalm 78:32-39

It is a popular piece of folklore that tells us that at the end of the rainbow there is waiting to be found a pot of gold. It seems that the rainbow has always been regarded as a sign of good fortune or of God's providence. Thus, in the story of Noah and his ark, God tells Noah and his family: "This is the sign of the covenant which I make between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for all future generations: I set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be a sign of the covenant between me and the earth" (9:12,13).

NEVER AGAIN

The proverbial "pot of gold" might seem highly desirable at first thought, but God's promise is of much more importance to us than any pot of gold, no matter how big or valuable it might be. For God's rainbow symbol is to signify something that is vital to civilization and the race itself: " . never again shall all flesh be cut off by the waters of a flood, and never again shall there be a flood to destroy the earth" (9:11).

So, of infinitely more value than a pot of gold is God's assurance of the new beginning — the opportunity to change course from the wrong one to the right one, to pick up the pieces of failure or disaster and start over again. In that sense, the rainbow is one of life's most important symbols for the possibility of a "new beginning," vital not only in individuals but society itself.

THE PROMISE

It is in the story of Noah that the Biblical term "covenant" first appears. Although the term is difficult to define and explain, perhaps it will help for us to think of a covenant as a mutual promise. In Genesis 9 God promises never to destroy humanity again.

That makes this passage from Genesis a pretty timely message, for we live in a day when it seems great multitudes of people firmly believe the end of the world is "just around the corner." They seem resignedly pessimistic about the world and its "immanent destruction." I find this attitude particularly prevalent among the younger generation — one recent high school graduate asked me just this evening: "Do you think the end of the world is inevitable? Are we going to blow ourselves up?"

At that moment I thought of the rainbow and God's promise and remembered the covenant that God gave to Noah and all of us.

You can't afford to plant second best

■ Don't be misled by cheap seed treatments that only provide limited disease protection. The systemic activity of Vitavax® -200 protects your wheat and barley against disease losses from true loose smut, common bunt, scab seedling blight, seed rots and seedling diseases.

■ Vitavax is patented as a growth stimulant. Under field stress conditions, like drought or cool, wet weather, Vitavax-200 treated plants normally emerge faster, develop more extensive root systems and larger crowns, and produce healthier stands that contribute to higher yields.

Vitavax gets to the heart of the problem. ♥ It gets to the heart of the seed.

Va. Corn Growers Field Day Highlights Marketing Options

BY JULIE GOCHENOUR
Virginia Correspondent

BEALETON, Va. — Nearly 600 farmers turned out for the Virginia Corn Growers Association's field day at Wilbur Ritchie's Inglewood Farm near Bealeton, Virginia, last Friday. In addition to viewing dozens of test plots and more than 40 exhibits, the corn producers toured a nearby ethanol plant and heard reports from both the National Corn Growers Association and the U.S. Feed Grains Council.

Morning activities during the field day included horse and wagon rides to outlying test plots on the 1800-acre Fauquier County farm, as well as a soil compaction demonstration by VPI's Extension agronomist, Dr. George Hawkins. Farmers also had the opportunity to study the Ritchie operation, meet visiting Trade Teams from Taiwan, North Korea and the Republic of China and to visit the exhibitors show.

Many producers were particularly interested in the ethanol facility, Virginia Solid Fuels. According to Bill Kovarik, with the Virginia Ethanol Fuels Association, Virginia ethanol producers will use four million bushels of corn this year and a projected eight million bushels in 1987. Nationwide, he said, ethanol producers added ten cents per bushel to 1985 corn prices. Yet "agriculture in the energy business" as Kovarik calls ethanol production, is politically controversial and he urged corn producers to support and promote the use of ethanol.

At nearby Virginia Solid Fuels, plant manager Frank Whitlock led farmers on a tour of the ethanol "drying" facility. There the proof of the corn alcohol is brought from 194 percent to 199 percent making it suitable for fuel. The plant has been in operation since December of last year and has the capacity to dry six to seven million gallons of ethanol. Tax incentives, however, place a three and a half million gallon cap on production, Whitlock explained, adding that without tax incentives there is no profit in ethanol production.

Rich Watts, Director of Field Services for the National Corn Growers Association, also addressed the subject of ethanol when he spoke on new uses for corn. Although livestock feed is still the single largest use for corn, two hundred and forty bushels of corn was used for ethanol production in 1985, a 40 percent increase in the 1984 figure. Most ethanol is used as an octane enhancer in gasoline, he reported, with Virginia blending 17 percent of its fuel with ethanol to make it fifth in the nation.

Even more impressive, Watts continued, is the 500 million bushels of corn used to make high fructose corn sweeteners. Furthermore, Staley Continental has come up with a crystalline fructose that should increase the use of corn "by a couple hundred million bushels," he said. Watts also called the National Corn Growers Association's search for new products "our reason for existing" and outlined the work by the Association's new starch utilization committee.

The work of this committee, the director of field services explained, is to investigate some 13,000 patents for starch utilization and to promote the development of the most likely. Three strong possibilities include a a non-corrosive de-icer already marketed by Chevron for home use, bio-degradable plastics which the Coca-Cola company has researched as a possibility for their bottled drinks, and "super-slurper", the extra absorbent material found in heavy-duty disposable diapers that could perhaps be used to treat seeds, fight fires, and to absorb unwanted water in fuel filters.

products will be higher, but that total income for dairy farmers may remain the same.

"From the profit standpoint it may be tough sledding," Sechrist remarked. "In the 21st century DHIA needs to be ready to meet the needs of dairy farmers. We will need to be more high-tech. There will probably need to be more electronic instruments at the farm."

Sechrist concluded that since farmers are fighting to survive in a changing economy, DHIA must change to maintain its service to member farmers. He urged the delegates to formulate goals within their local organizations so that dairy farming will continue to be profitable.

Harding, director of sales for the PHA, in visiting five farms. Other areas have already been visited. And plans call for the selection of animals even into Maryland to continue for the next several weeks. Kriebel said the dairy science club has about a hundred members. And they are involved with a number of projects related to milk promotion and to giving their members practical experience in many different phases of the dairy industry. "While some of our activities do become fund raisers, it's more important that we have a learning experience for persons in our club who would not otherwise have a way to gain these practical experiences," Kriebel said.

Jeff Harding said it's also good for the PHA to have a chance to work with the students and add an additional dimension of service to the state holstein program. This sale does put extra pressures on both students and PHA personnel since the sale selection must take place over the state show and the All American. In addition, the students just get back to college in September. So they really only get back into the project at about this time.

Obviously selecting cattle for a top quality sale is not easy. But you didn't need to travel with the group long this week to know these students knew their cow families. And it soon became evident that everyone contacted wanted to give them a good pedigreed animal in the right stage of life to be an asset to the sale. Dr. Larry Muller, club advisor, and Dr. Thomas Sweeney, assistant advisor, were given much credit for their work with the students and the success of the clubs activities.

The students hope to have about 50 head of good quality cattle in the sale. Right now they have commitments for about 30 head. So they still would like to have some additional leads, especially to young cows and bred heifers from strong cow families. If you or someone you know has a prospect for this sale, you are invited to call Jeff Harding at the PHA office, 814-234-0364, or the sale selection chairman Charles Seidel, 814-238-1421, or Kriebel at 814-234-8749.

And also get prepared to attend the October 31 Fall Classic Sale. With the prospect of some outstanding animals already consigned to this sale, it may be even more exciting than a football game.

Southwest District 4-H Show Names Winners

BY BETH NESBIT

SOMERSET — On Saturday, Aug. 30 the best 4-H dairy members from eight southwestern Pennsylvania counties congregated at the Somerset County Fairgrounds for the 40th annual Southwest District 4-H Dairy Show. Each 4-H animal represents the best from their respective counties; the district competition is to choose the best from the best to represent southwestern Pennsylvania at the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show to be held Sept. 22, at the Farm Show complex in Harrisburg.

Judges for this day-long event were type judge, Ron Long, Select Sires; fitting judge, Richard Plotts, Clinton County Extension agent; and the showmanship judge, Lisa Cooper, Butler County extension program assistant.

A total of 229 animals were exhibited by 150 4-H members. The eight counties participating in the show were: Armstrong, Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Clearfield, Huntington, Indiana, and Somerset.

The day began with the exhibition of the Milking Shorthorn; Monica Goshorn, Huntingdon County, was the owner of the grand champion and the reserve grand champion Milking Shorthorn.

In the Holstein competition the host county's 4-H members dominated the grand and reserve grand championships with Karen Marteeny exhibiting the grand champion and Paul Carr leading the reserve grand champion. Holly Edwards, Indiana County, was at the halter of the junior champion while Lisa Claypoole stood in the reserve junior champion position.

A Bedford County resident received the grand champion title in the Guernsey competition. Beth Ann Clark exhibited her 4-year-old cow to claim this title. Gina Yaple of Clearfield was the owner of the reserve grand champion Guernsey.

Every year a special award is given to the outstanding Guernsey showman at the conclusion of the Guernsey show. This award is presented by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Bedford County, in memory of their daughter Lori Anne. Lori Anne was an active member in the 4-H organization. The recipient of the award this year was Lori Winsheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Weinsheimer, Indiana County.

In the Ayrshire competition Julie Hall, Huntingdon County, captured the grand champion title while Michele Burket of Blair County received the reserve champion ribbon.

Cindy Deabenderfer, a second-year 4-H dairy member from Indiana County, was at the halter of the grand champion Brown Swiss female. Huntingdon County resident, Diane Goshorn, received the reserve champion title.

Standing in the champion Jersey position was Janice Hardy of Huntingdon County. Sam McGargle also of Huntingdon County captured the reserve champion honors.

York County Crowns Youth Dairy Champions

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

YORK — Bridgette Boyer swept the York Fair 4-H dairy show's Holstein competition on Wednesday, claiming three of the four top placings with a homebred trio of maternal sisters.

Grand champion honors of the York Fair's FFA show went to, from left, Lisa Kilgore, Brown Swiss, Kelly Kilgore, Holstein, Tom Parks, Ayrshire, and Tim Warner, Jersey.

Sunnybend Sexy Icicle B Star topped her senior 2-year-old class and beat out her 4-year-old full sister, Sunnybend Sexy B Glitter, in the senior and grand champion runoffs. The sisters are by Ocean View Sexation, and from the York 4-H'er's first 4-H animal.

At the 4-H district show, Icicle was also first in her class, and had won junior champion honors at previous local competitions as a heifer. Two years ago, Glitter was named 4-H and open class champion at the York Fair.

A third sister, by Tiho Kit Builder, was named reserve junior champion after winning her intermediate yearling age class.

Their dam, Sunnybend Dapples Black Star, was selected for Bridgette's first project animal by former county extension agent John Smith. Bridgette has a fourth maternal sister by Columbus, and a total of six offspring, plus the original cow, among her 4-H herd.

Junior champion was Bupplynn Ultimate Pear-Twin, the winning senior yearling exhibited by Rich Bupp, Seven Valleys. By Quality Ultimate, and from a Marvex dam, she had taken reserve junior honors at the 4-H roundup show.

Kelly Morris, Fawn Grove, exhibited the junior and grand champion Guernsey. Beas Bonus Tinkerbell, a senior calf by Lyndale Bonus J. Telstar, was bred by Josseph Kilgore, Delta.

She bested the reserve junior champion, a junior yearling by Edisto Farms Th Friday, bred and exhibited by Annie Rauhauser, Dover.

Kelly Jo Myer's intermediate calf got the nod for junior and grand champion of the Brown Swiss division. Welsh Ponderosa Tital Jo Anna is sired by Lar-Le Stretch Titan OCS and was bred by Mike Welsh.

Taking the Brown Swiss division's reserve junior and grand was a junior calf, also by Titan, bred and exhibited by Shelly Shaffer.

A dam and daughter pair earned the Jersey division senior and grand champion and reserve rosettes for Thomasville 4-H'er Susan Eisenhart.

Pine Mountain Fashionable Daily, a five-year-old by Fashionable Pioneer, topped her 3-year-old daughter, Eisenharts Bonanza Dandy, by Secret Bonanza.

In the heifer classes of the Jersey show, Tim Warner's in-intermediate calf, Top-O-Hill Silver Beacon Gem, took the junior championship for the New Park 4-Her. Finishing in the reserve junior spot was Dover 4-H exhibitor Paul Rauhauser, with his intermediate yearling, Noble Shelly D Lilac Springs.

Most heated contest of the day in the 4-H dairy competition was for the fitting and showmen championships.

Emerging as top fitter of the day was 10-year-old Shelly Shaffer, a third-year exhibitor with the Central 4-H Dairy Club. Her silver-gray Brown Swiss heifer was immaculate, with black polished hooves and not a trace of dust or manure visible.

Questioned on her winning technique, Shelly said she had only washed the heifer twice — but thoroughly — and took special pains with the ears. Shelly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Shaffer, Thomasville.

Virginia Corn Growers

Marketing was also the topic of Ken Hobbie with the U.S. Feed Grains Council. Zeroing in on overseas market development, Hobbie told the Virginia corn producers of his organization's work as the overseas arm of the American feed industry. Financed with funds from producers, agribusiness and the USDA, the Council has 15 offices and 200 ongoing programs around the world to develop the use of U.S. feed grains in other countries.

As countries develop economically, Hobbie explained, the local diet begins to include more meat, eggs and dairy products—all of which require feed grains to produce. Between 1981 and 1986 there was a two billion bushel growth in the market for feed grains, he reported, even though the United States' share of the market declined dramatically during that time. American grains simply weren't competitive, he said, and consequently U.S. feed grains exports are at an all-time low of 1.5 billion bushels.

Next year's exports are projected to be 1.8 billion bushels and by 1990 the Feed Grains Council hopes levels will be substantially higher, but buying patterns will not shift right away, Hobbie warned. There is also a great need for more private support for export market development, he continued, since this would make such important activity less dependent on shifting USDA policies. Building markets for American grain requires active involvement from everyone, including producers, and while optimistic, these goals are not unreachable, Hobbie concluded.

Virginia's Commissioner of Agriculture, Mason Carbaugh, also echoed. the same note of cautious optimism in the program's closing remarks. Bright spots in conventional farm products include feeder cattle, poultry, hogs and dairying—all of which utilize corn. He also expressed confidence that Virginia producers and their commodity associations would continue to develop the markets needed for their crops.

Maryland Dairyman Elected To NACD Board

SOLEBURY — The Northeast Regional Council of the National Association of Conservation Districts has elected Donald L. Spickler to serve on the NACD Board of Directors. The election came at the Northeast NACD regional meeting in Hagerstown, Md., on August 14.

Spickler is currently the president of the Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts. He said he is happy with his election. "It will be a challenge to serve on the board, but it will also be fun. I am pleased that the council members had the confidence in me to serve," Spickler said.

The board of directors is the main governing body of the NACD. Board members carry out the policies of the NACD, vote on the association budget, and elect officers. Twenty-one people, three from each of the seven NACD regions, serve on the board.

"He (Spickler) will definitely be an asset," said board member Bill Lange. "I am looking forward to working with someone of Mr. Spickler's capabilities."

Donald Spickler

Spickler will officially join the board in February 1987 at the NACD national convention in Reno, Nev. He will serve a three-year term.

Spickler is a dairy farmer in Clear Spring, Md., and has been a supervisor in the Washington County Soil Conservation District for the past 15 years.

York Fair Names 4-H Steer, Breeding Beef Champs

May, the stylish calf had claimed a reserve championship for the youngster, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Calderazzo, York, R9.

Reserve champion in the Angus breed show went to Tom Bross, and Cathy Shive claimed the best bred-and-owned honors. Other class winners were Krista Rankin, junior calf; Sandra Eisenhour, summer yearling; Karena Rankin, junior yearling; Susan Eisenhour, late junior yearling; and pairs awards to Sandra Eisenhour and Cathy Shive.

His March, 1985 late junior yearling put Wayne Stough, Jr., into the grand champion spot in Simmental competition. Sired by Generation Three, "Sissy" was purchased by Stough at the Pennsylvania Simmental State Sale, and earned similar honors in the same arena at the May Preview Show. Sixteen-year-old Stough is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Stough, Spring Grove R1, and an eight-year 4-H showring veteran.

Taking the Simmental reserve honors to his brother's top win was Jay Stough with the second-place late junior yearling. In the best bred-and-owned class, Jenni Druck claimed the first place win, with her April-born calf.

Other class winners in the Simmental division were Jenni Druck, junior calf; Jimmy Townsend, senior calf; Tim Ferrence, summer yearling; Nancy Townsend, late junior yearling; Joe Druck, cow-calf; and Nancy Townsend, pairs.

"Vicki," a homebred summer yearling, took Hereford grand champion honors and best bred-and-owned for Sonja Shearer of Abbottstown, R1. The 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Shearer also collected the reserve champion breed honors with her junior calf entry. Ed Livingston won the late junior yearling class.

Spring Grove 4-H'er Paul Miller earned the Charolais champion honors with an outstanding heifer which also swept the open class shows. Paul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller, Sr., Spring Grove R5.

In the Other Breeds division, Kenley Jo Myers, took the champion and best bred-and-owned rosettes with her Limousin calf, "Silver." Kenley, 14, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Myers, Dallastown R1.

4-H Fitting and Showmanship

Paul Miller, Jr., swept all 4-H fitting and showmanship competitions, exhibiting a perfectly white Charolais heifer scrubbed to sparkle like new-fallen snow.

Though only exhibiting for four years, the Spring Grove 4-H'er is as adept with the show stick as he is with brush, hide soap and hose. His expertise won the tall, blonde Spring Grove High School junior championships in a pair of fitting runoffs and the showmanship class.

Miller added to a growing collection of awards the York Fair Special Fitting trophy sponsored by long-time 4-H leader and beef breeder Bill Dietz. Reserve winner of Special Fitting and a Dietz-sponsored trophy was Sandra Eisenhour, Wellsville, who topped the age 9-14 class. Collecting the Rookie trophy, sponsored by Hidden Lane Farms, was Dwight Hedrick of Delta.

In the York Fair-sponsored 4-H Beef Fitting, Miller and Eisenhour again collected the champion and reserve awards. Brothers Justin and Dwight Hedrick, Delta, topped the 8-10, and 11-12 age group classes.

Showmanship competition wrapped up with Paul Miller again on top, over reserve champion Jennifer Calderazzo. Top three winners in each showmanship age group were: 8-10 years - Jennifer Calderazzo, York, first; Apryl Bowles, Red Lion, second, Justin Hedrick, Delta, third; 11-12 years - Jason Rankin, Abbottstown, first; Robin Shive, Seven Valleys, second; Bradley Trowbridge, Stoverstown, third; 13-14 years- Susan Eisenhour, Wellsville, first; Karena Rankin, Abbottstown, second; Cathy Shive, third; and 15-19 years- Paul Miller, Spring Grove, first; Krista Rankin, Abbottstown, second; and John Eaton, Windsor, third.

Boyer's Holstein Wins Supreme Honors In Open Show

YORK — Sunnybend Hedda Fleet S-Chief turned in a supreme performance Thursday. Appropriately, for this performance she earned the supreme championship of the York Fair dairy show. She bested the best of the remaining five dairy breeds for this honor.

Owned by the Boyer family of Sunnybend Farm, York, Hedda reigned supreme after capturing the Holstein championship, and best bred and owned senior female class. She stood first in her 3-year-old class and second in the best udder class.

During the supreme contest of the York Fair, judges Jim Shaw and John Morris positioned the six champions in a head-to-tail row, commenting on the strong points of each. In the final analysis the competition came to the Jersey champion owned by Mildred Seeds and Sunnybend's Holstein.

Morris and Shaw placed Hedda over the Jersey giving her an advantage in size and scale, she also showed more balance and a stronger front end.

Rutter's Dairy presented the supreme trophy in memory of M. Ebert Rutter.

Hedda earned grand championship honors of the Holstein show by edging Coredale Holsteins' VG-88 senior 2-year-old cow. Morris granted her an advantage in upstandingness and stretch over Coredale Creek Nan.

Just fresh three weeks, Hedda is producing 90 pounds of milk per day. She produced a 305-day, 1-11 record of 20,000 pounds of milk and classified VG-85 as a dry cow.

Sired by Hillaire Mon Fleet, Hedda is the greatgranddaughter of Tom Boyer's first FFA animal. Her original line began five generations ago when Boyer's father bought the dam from Boyer's grandfather.

Two years ago Hedda stood in the junior championship position; last year she stood first in the 2-year-old class.

Coredale's champion entry, Coredale Creek Nan, stood in the reserve champion position of the July York County Holstein Show. She claimed this honor in a close placing over Paul King's aged cow.

Nan is a homebred daughter of Creek Bluff Elevation Lester. She completed a 305 record of 17,493 pounds of milk with a 3.8 test. Her dam, also classified VG-88, produced a best record of 22,000 pounds of milk and 700 pounds of fat. Nan's credits have captured recent foreign interest for the Thompsons.

Bupplynn Ultimate Pear, owned by Richard Bupp of Seven Valleys, repeated her 1985 York Fair junior champion win. The top senior yearling, she is out of Quality Ultmate and Bupp-lynn Marex Patty.

Taking the reserve junior championship was another Sunnybend entry, Sunnybend Kitkat Kit B B Star, owned by Bridgette Boyer. Tiho Kit builder sired Kitkat, the top intermediate yearling.

Mildred Seeds' grand champion Jersey, Top-O-Hill Silver Beacon Tinsel, presented the strongest competition for the supreme champion honor. Her senior 2-year-old has presented stiff competition to all comers this fair season as she remains undefeated. Tinsel, out of the Canadian bull Valley Stream Silver Beacon and the perennial champion Top-O-Hill Milestone Tempest, has stood in the grand champion position of three shows this season.

Seed's show string has taken the supreme championship at two show this summer. Tinsel received the honor at the Cecil County, Md., Fair while her barnmate, junior 2-year-old Top-O-Hill Silver Beacon Penny, captured the honor at the Allentown Fair.

Challenging the Top-O-Hill entry was Mar-De Farms aged cow entry, Faithful Advancer Coleen. Owned by Mary Ellen Deaven, Cumberland County, Coleen took the grand championship at the recent South-Central District 4-H show. She stood in the grand champion position of last year's York Fair Jersey show. Mary Ellen will be taking the 9-year-old on to the Pennsylvania junior dairy show in Harrisburg in two weeks.

The Ayrshire show was dominated by Sam Diehl, of Cove Creek Ayrshires in Bedford County. His senior 2-year-old cow bested last year's champion, 5-year-old Cove Creek Greta's Bonnie. Diehl also showed the junior and reserve junior champions.

Lisa Kilgore, Airville, earned the grand and reserve grand champion titles with a pair of cow given to her by her uncle and father. The grand champion, Airville Lisa, was Lisa's first project animal. She stood in the grand champion position of the FFA show and was sired by Lar-Le Stretch Titan.

Her reserve grand champion cow, senior 2-year-old Welsh Ponderosa Titan Cindi, came to Lisa as a compensation for a calf which died. She is also sired by Lar-Le Stretch Titan.

Wayne Hobaugh of York earned grand champion honors with his 3-year-old Middle Ground Hernys Sundance. This is the second consecutive grand championship for Sundance; she won the honor at the South Mountain Fair earlier this summer.

Sired by Hollow View Jet Sunshine, Hobaugh purchased her as a heifer at a Guernsey Sale held at the Guernsey Sales Pavilion. Hobaugh notes that he has shown at the York Fair since he started 4-H 34 years ago.

Rutter Brothers claimed the reserve grand champion position with last year's reserve grand champion winner, Rutter Brothers Buckys Bear. Cindy Rutter Johnson explained that three generations of this family showed at Wednesday's show, each winning their class. As a 4-year-old cow, Bear is projected at 19,000 pounds of milk and she produced 85 pounds of milk last month.

The Milking Shorthorn show was dominated by Jim and Linda Young of Newville. Their senior 2-year-old, Oak Grove Texas Lynn, stepped into the grand champion position. She has stood in this position at the Shippensburg Fair and the Maryland State Fair this year. Last year she earned the junior championship of the York Fair and reserve junior championship of the Milking Shorthorn National Show.

Wayne Hobaugh, left, copped the grand champion honors of the York Fair Guernsey show. With him are his granddaughter, Shannon, and daughter-in-law, Karen.

Proof that all hybrids aren't alike.

A lot of seed salesmen will tell you that all hybrids are alike. That they're all developed from the same public lines. Well, depending on the salesman, that could be true — of his lineup. It's not true at Pioneer. That's because every Pioneer® brand hybrid is developed from one or more lines that only Pioneer has. It's one of the reasons why the differences between Pioneer hybrids and others show up at harvest. And why you find so many Pioneer hybrids with exceptional yield, dry down and standability.

Performance wise, 3744 is tough to beat. Besides outyielding the competition by a wide margin over the last three years, 3744 usually dries down faster. It has excellent root and stalk strength, resists Northern, Southern and Carbonum Leaf Blights, and does well under higher populations and higher management or irrigation.

3352

This newcomer has already proven itself as the yield leader for its maturity. Over the last three years in this area, 3352 holds a significant yield advantage against competitive hybrids. Now, that kind of performance speaks for itself. But besides yields, 3352 has very good emergence and early vigor along with excellent stay green and leaf disease resistance against Northern and Southern Leaf Blights, Eyespot and Gray Leafspot. This hybrid is going to surprise a lot of folks.

3378

A leading hybrid with the ability to deliver big, hefty yields in poor growing seasons as well as good growing seasons. 3378 owes much of this success to its hearty agronomic traits like outstanding plant health, superb standability, fast emergence, strong drought tolerance and ears that "flex" to accommodate growing conditions. With so much going for it, it's not hard to see why 3378 is a lot of growers' favorite corn. Plant some and you'll be convinced too.

Angus Bull, Charolais Heifer Reign 'Supreme' At York

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK – Supreme champions of York Fair's open class beef breeding were a clear-cut black and white decision, with the honors split between the Angus and Charolais divisions.

Byrnley Farms of Plains, Virginia, capped a successful show day when their Angus entry topped the breed class and then bested all other contenders to take the Supreme Bull honors.

Sired by Har Bang 1774, the April, 1985-born bull is owned by Byrnley in partnership with William Creager, also of Virginia, and Huntington Farms, of Alexander, Pennsylvania. Just two weeks ago, the yearling was also named Angus bull champion at the Maryland State Fair at Timonium.

A Texas-bred Chianina heifer snagged the supreme champion female awards for Spring Grove 4-H'er Paul Miller.

"C J Ms. Elite 5942" was bred by C.J. Ranch of Leona, Texas. Her sire is RER Elite and she's from the dam Riverwood Snowflake.

The Fair's supreme award was just the latest in a string of honors for Miller and the March, 1985, yearling he selected and purchased last October. She was reserve grand at the February San Antonio Livestock Show, and at the West Virginia State Fair in August. Miller hopes to continue his winnings with Ms. Elite next week in Tennessee.

A high school junior who plans a civil engineering career, Miller will integrate the tall, stylish heifer's bloodlines into the family's Miller Charolais Company herd of 35 registered cows. He is the son of Paul Sr., and Pat Miller, and has been showing in 4-H competition for four years.

In the Simmental show, C & J Valley Farm, Spring Grove, exhibited the champion female, a junior heifer. Reserve female honors went to Triple C Farm, Shoemakersville, with a March junior yearling. Triple C also took senior and champion bull honors for their summer senior yearling. Reserve champion Simmental bull was the winning bull calf exhibited by C and J Valley Farm.

Female grand champion honors in the Hereford breed went to the junior champion, an April junior yearling exhibited by Green Briar Farm, Keedysville, Maryland. Sonja Shearer, Abbottstown, took the reserve female champion with her junior calf. Taking the bull grand and reserve awards was Salunga Acres, Mt. Joy, with their winning senior and junior bull entries.

Charolais female champion honors went to Paul Miller, who copped the supreme award, and Amy Sherman, Abbottstown, was named reserve champion female Charolais with her heifer calf champion. Kent Fisher exhibited the grand champion bull and John Myers took the reserve honors.

John Hausnerk, The Plains, Virginia, snagged the grand champion female rosettes in the Angus contest, over reserve champion Jennifer Calderazzo. Byrnley Farms, The Plains, Virginia, swept the top Angus bull honors, taking the championship with the entry later named the Supreme bull winner

Female honors in the Chianina division were split between Lake View Farm, East Berlin, taking the junior and grand champion female with a heifer calf, and Jamie Kohr's summer heifer in the reserve grand spot. Grand champion Chianina bull was the junior champion exhibited by Moving M Farm, Warriors Mark, over the bull calf entry of Lake View finishing as reserve champion.

Marshall Brothers Keep Fat Level Rising

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

ROARING BRANCH – Maintaining a high butterfat level with a large herd is a difficult feat, but one that Marshall Brothers of Roaring Branch have achieved for a number of years.

The butterfat level of the Marshall's herd of 189 Holsteins perennially ranks as one of the highest in Lycoming County. Their main herd of 123 cows maintains a rolling herd average of 17,611 pounds of milk and 743 pounds of fat with a 4.2 test. A second herd of 66 cows averages a 3.8 percent fat test.

Brothers Clyde and Elwin Marshall and Clyde's son, Steve, form a three-way partnership. Genetics, according to the Marshalls, contributes greatly to their high fat percentage.

"As long as I remember we've had cows that would test well," says Steve who left college to return to the farm. "We've never used a lot of bulls that are minus test. We've always been real conscious of it."

Clyde notes that Steve does most of the breeding and hopes to have a top breeding herd someday.

When James Marshall, Clyde and Elwin's grandfather, bought the farm in 1903 it contained 100 acres. Through the years additional land was purchased; today, with rented acreage, the Marshalls farm 765 acres to support almost 400 head of cattle.

They've been on test since 1972, Steve says, and have always tested at a 3.8 percent fat level and above.

"We use all the tools available in selecting bulls," Steve adds.

In an effort to breed cattle that are merchandiseable and to improve their milk, Steve says, they select bulls out of the top of the TPI list with strong fat and protein tests.

Cow families with impressive records dot Steve's conversation. He alludes first to their Olive cow family. Marshalea Kate Olive 2E-GMD has produced a lifetime record of 200,000 pounds of milk and 10,000 pounds of 5.0 percent fat. Her daughter, Ollie, VG-86 has over 100,000 pounds of milk to date with a lifetime 5.0 percent test. Ollie has a Kingpin daughter 3 years of age, GP-83, with a 4.7 lifetime test.

Another outstanding cow family of the Marshalls' is the Hope cow family. Marshalea Kate Hope has produced 200,000 pounds of milk in 11 years. Hope's daughter, VG-86, produced 27,000 pounds of milk and 1,400 pounds of fat in her highest lactation. Another daughter ranked second or third in the nation for fat in DHIR, according to Steve. An additional daughter of Hope's by Sexation scored VG-86 and produced over the 4.5 fat level.

At 18 years, Marshalea Perseus Belle, the Marshall's oldest cow is EX-2E and has produced 150,000 pounds of milk to date, however, she started on the testing program as a 10 year old. Belle has a granddaughter who went Excellent and made 1,000 pounds of fat as a two year old. Some of Belle's sons have gone to bull studs.

And as a former 4-Her Steve recalls with pride that out of Marshalea Kate Rachel, a cow given to him for his ninth birthday, came a daughter that won the 1974 Reserve Junior All-Pennsylvania.

The Marshalls raise the majority of their registered heifers. Presently, Clyde says, they have a total of 200 replacement stock. Two large heifer barns at the main farm with loose housing for 50 and 75 to 80 head accommodate heifers. Calves are tied outside.

Concerning the Marshalls' feeding regimen, Steve observes, "I don't think we feed any different, but how we feed may be different."

Grain is fed three times a day, Steve notes, and they see that the cows get plenty of fiber.

According to Clyde, this time of year they feed high-moisture corn, silage and hay. During the winter the cows receive haylage. The cattle are turned out to pasture at night with the low producers turned back to pasture for a couple hours in the morning.

When you're feeding almost 400 head of cattle, it takes a lot of feed. Except for protein and minerals the Marshalls grow all their own feed. This year they planted 375 acres of corn with an additional 350 acres in alfalfa hay. Forty acres are direct seeded.

The Marshalls fill a 100-by-30 foot trench silo with haylage which, when full, will accommodate 100 acres of hay. An even larger trench nearby measuring 130-by-50-by-12 feet dwarfs a dump truck parked inside.

The trench takes approximately three weeks to fill with 100 acres of corn silage, according to Raymond Livermore, an employee. Two silos at the main farm are filled with high moisture corn, while at the Mars-View Farm two additional silos are filled with corn silage and high moisture corn.

Clyde stresses that their is "truly a family farm." Although Steve does most of the breeding, he says, they all work together at whatever needs doing to make the farm function.

They don't take too many shortcuts, Clyde says, and he observes, "You have to have a routine . . . not this today and that tomorrow . . . Cows have to come ahead of you most days."

A "go-fetcher" is what Clyde calls his wife, Jean. She knows where to get most anything there is, he explains, and sees the bills get paid.

Breeding a good cow is one of the most rewarding aspects of farming to Steve, whereas "the most troublesome is trying to get the work done when it should be."

With both farms the Marshalls employ five full-time helpers.

"The success of their farm," Steve reflects, "has been a lot of hard work and keeping at it . . . Persistence, I guess," he adds.

Raymond Livermore, the mechanic on the farm, keeps everything running, according to Clyde Marshall. Here he sharpens mower knives in preparation for the next day's mowing.

Don Warren feeds the heifers in the 66 head heifer barn.

The Marshall Brothers farm is located near Roaring Branch in Lycoming County They farm 765 acres and raise almost 400 head of cattle.

Marshalls raise all their feed with the exception of proteins and minerals. Steve takes a break from cutting haylage to discuss plans with his father, Clyde.

Walton Family Claims Premier Banners At Bucks Co.

WRIGHTSTOWN — One dairy farm family and one cow family reaped the majority of the champion rosettes and premier banners of the Bucks County Holstein Show held at the Middletown Grange Fairgrounds.

Grand champion honors went to Fountain Farm Jet Queen, owned by Harry and Aliene Thompson, Newton. Queen classified at EX-93 and is a Jet Stream out of a VG-89 Elevation daughter. In her most recent lactation, she produced 22,622 pounds of milk and 798 pounds of fat.

Queen's daughter, Fountain Farm Pete Holly Queen owned by Harry and Aliene Thompson, took the junior champion honors. The junior champion was sired by Straight Pine Elevation Pete. Queen's granddaughter, Fountain Farm Queens Violet owned by Craig Walton, took the reserve junior championship. The reserve junior champion was sired by Sir C Valor.

The family affair continued with the owners of the animals.

David Walton is the son-in-law of Harry Thompson and the owner of Tower-Vue Holsteins, winners of the premier breeder and premier exhibitor banners.

He describes winning both premier banners as "quite an honor." It came as a surprise to him since his family only showed nine head. "We were fortunate to have enough firsts in the senior division," he noted in explaining the strength of his show string.

Eight of the nine Tower-Vue Holsteins shown came in first or second. Six of these animals showed in the cow classes. He attributes the success to his family, notably his son, Craig, and daughter, Elizabeth, who cared for the show string before and during the show.

Walton also won the reserve grand championship with his 4-year-old cow, Tower-Vue Jerry Cabaret-Twin. A Straight Pine Elevation Pete daughter, she classified VG-87.

In the junior show, Stephen Worthington captured the senior and grand championship with his 7-year-old dry cow, Curly Hill Marvex Lou. Reserve senior champion went to Ryan Worthington's 3-year-old daughter of Creek Bluff Elevation Lester.

The junior champion, owned by Craig Walton, also claimed the reserve grand champion rosette. This animal previously placed as reserve junior champion of the open show. Reserve junior champion of the junior show went to Gerald Dabbs' entry, Grosslyn Stewart Connie.

Elwood Ohlinger of Reu-Hel Farm in Mohrsville judged the show. Carl and Janice Slack of Musicow Holsteins acted as co-chairmen of the show. Also serving on the show committee was: Harry and Aliene Thompson, Kenneth Worthington, Warren Buckman III, Tex Peters, James Pavlica, James Phillips, Tom Haldeman, David Walton, David Wurster and Jerry Meyers.

Twelve years of intense research have created a line of thoroughbreds unlike any other seed wheat in the world The technology is based on a chemical hybridizing agent designed to produce the most advanced wheat hybrids in the shortest possible time

The results? That extra hybrid vigor once available only in seed corn Increased tillering, which dramatically reduces seeding rates (up to 50% in some tests) Greater straw strength And added tolerance to ward off disease

Bred for the American wheat farmer of the 80's, Hybrex hybrids respond wholeheartedly to high management techniques

In a university trial in Maryland, a Hybrex hybrid easily outdistanced a field of 23 popular varietals with 127 bushels per acre

And we're currently conducting trials with customers in Pennsylvania and Maryland that are showing outstanding results. Like these farmers, with good crop management, you should significantly surpass your present varietal yield record, and boost profits substantially

Jersey Breeders Seek To Market Their Milk On A High Solids Basis

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

SHIPPENSBURG — Milk marketing and young sire sampling were the major topics of discussion at the Cumberland Valley Jersey Breeders' Annual Chicken Barbecue held Sept. 6 at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds. Thirty-five members and their families gathered to enjoy the meal and to hear the featured speaker, Dennis Erpelding, marketing specialist with National All-Jersey, Inc., Columbus, Ohio.

For the last 18 months, Erpelding has worked to market the approximately 50,000 pounds of Jersey milk produced by the group on a high-solids basis. He opened his discussion stating, "We are talking here about how to get you a better milk market. That means getting you the most dollars in your milkcheck." Reporting on his progress, he told the group that he received viable offers from two groups — Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative, Syracuse, N.Y. and Jefferson Cheese Co., Hagerstown, Md.

Eastern's proposal includes 6 cents per point over 3.3 percent protein and 10 cents per hundredweight for milk with less than 350,000 SSC, under 25,000 plate count, and a freezing point minimum of 4.2. The protein payments ties directly to the quality bonus. Failure to meet all the criteria for the quality bonus also results in a lose of the protein payment. Membership fees to the co-op would average 21 cents per hundredweight shipped.

Jefferson Cheese is considering a different protein program. Jefferson, who needs milk now that supplies are down, will need to structure the best program available in the area to attract shippers, according to Erpelding.

The proposal under consideration by Jefferson Cheese includes a Class III price of $11.11, a 16.5 cent fat differential, and a protein program of 15 cents per point. Their quality program would be independent of the protein payment.

Since the groups desires to market their milk as a block, and each producer is tied to other co-ops by different anniversary dates, Erpelding outlined a procedure by which each producer could join the Equity Co-op. The Equity Co-op, which is operational in other parts of the country, would be organized here as a local and run by local membership. It would serve as the marketing agent for the entire block of milk.

The group plans to proceed with a detailed comparison of the two proposals and a decision will be made at a later meeting.

On the national scene, Erpelding told the group that the Reagan Administration adamently opposes any kind of supply management or quota system. So much so that they have refused to call an Order Meeting in the Northwest so as to prevent any discussion on these topics.

While the next Gramm-Rudman deductions are scheduled for Oct. 1, Erpelding is leery of any drastic cut in the support price due to the political ramifications to the Republicans in the Senate. However, he predicted that the 60 to 80 cent assessment would be deducted on that date.

On the brighter side, Erpelding reported that cheese and butter prices should continue to rise for the next several months. He noted that the drought in the South has strengthened their markets and that milk is now being hauled into that area from the Mid-West.

A short business meeting followed Erpelding's presentation.

The discussion focused on Liberty Jersey Sires, a duly organized cooperative of owners of Jersey cattle. Its objective is to cooperatively sample and prove additional young Jersey sires in order to provide genetic material for the continued improvement of the Jersey breed. There are 24 participating herds in the program.

Bill Dietrich, Cumberland Valley Jersey Breeders president, encouraged breeders to attend two upcoming events — the general membership meeting of LJS on Wednesday, Sept. 24, at 1 p.m. in Room B of the Farm Show Complex, and the Pennsylvania State Jersey Sale scheduled for 6 p.m. on the same day in the small arena.

Plan To Reduce Harvest Loss

Fall is the best season to do some of the jobs to help you be proud of your lawn next spring.

A thick accumulation of undecomposed organic material on the soil surface weakens the growth of the lawn grasses.

This condition, commonly referred to as thatch, if you dislike raking, you can rent a thatching machine to help remove thatch.

Lawn clippings: To leave or not to leave, that is the question! If your grass clippings are one inch or less in length, then leave them where they fall, and not only will you have less work to do, but you will reduce your fertilizer needs by 25 percent. Contrary to the "old husband's tale," clippings left on the lawn will not add to thatch buildup, and will break down by the following day. If the lawn clippings are more than one-inch long, pick them up, for they can smother the grass and create an absolute mess turning a good lawn into a very poor one in a very short time, especially if it rains afterwards.

National Dairy Board Hails Major Increase In Dairy Product Use

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Dairy Board issued its second annual report recently by hailing a major upswing in consumer use of dairy products.

"When the Board was created by Congress in 1983," Chief Executive Officer Joseph J. Westwater said, "the experts predicted the new national dairy promotional efforts would boost dairy sales about two percent a year. Now, according to U.S. Dept. of Agriculture figures, total milk sales are up seven percent for the two years."

The Board also reported that cheese sales are up 12 percent and butter use is up 5.7 percent in the two-year period.

Westwater said one of the major reasons dairy sales are up is the advertising campaign the Board has conducted to stress dairy products as part of today's healthy lifestyles as well as excellent sources of calcium.

"The value of milk, yogurt, cheese and cottage cheese as natural sources of calcium has the endorsement of virtually every important medical researcher in the country," Westwater said.

The Board last year spent $18.2 million or 29.8 percent of its $61.1 million advertising budget on dairy calcium promotion.

In addition, it funded television public service announcements for 68 members of Congress, including Speaker Tip O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, offering a free brochure on osteoporosis, the bone crippling disease, to their constitutents.

Other major advertising expenditures were $21.3 million for cheese, $13.5 million for fluid milk, $4.3 million for ice cream and $3.8 million for butter.

The Board also spent $6.6 million for nutrition research and education.

"We have many of the best medical researchers in the country doing calcium research, and in the next year there should be very significant results from these studies," Westwater said.

Another $3.8 million of the Board's funds went for product research and development.

"We are pleased by our accomplishments in the relatively short time period of our existence," Westwater said. "We have moved fast on ideas and that is a major reason for our success. We are launching our third year with the same enthusiasm as our first two, and hope to increase dairy products sales even more."

Dairy Leader Urges RCMA Sign-Up

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — A strong campaign to get all Northeastern dairy cooperatives and independent dairy farmers as members of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency can succeed in raising the farm price of milk, according to Clyde E. Rutherford, president of Dairylea Cooperative, Inc.

Rutherford, who is also chairman of the New York State Milk Advisory Council, said that more than 65 percent of the region's 30,000 producers are already members of RCMA.

RCMA is a Marketing Agency in Common as defined by the federal Capper-Volstead Act. The act permits farmers and their cooperatives joined together to establish prices for their products. In the milk industry, because such prices are set at some level above the minimums established each month by the federal milk marketing orders, the process is usually called "over-order pricing."

Rutherford said that Dairylea, one of the region's major milk processors, is committed to paying the RCMA over-order price "as soon as it can become effective." RCMA's executive director, Arthur Little, has set 95 percent of all Northeastern dairy farmers as the minimum sign up necessary to make the over-order pricing program work. He said that when the Pennsylvania - Maryland - Virginia cooperatives set up a companion pricing program identical to RCMA and coordinated with RCMA, the Northeast will then have almost 80 percent of the producers signed up.

"RCMA is the only legal mechanism now available that can deal with over-order pricing on a regional basis," said Rutherford. "For financially hard pressed dairymen, RCMA is an all-win, no-lose opportunity."

Dairylea's president, an Otego dairyman, urged farmers to consider these facts about RCMA: it is controlled by a board of directors representing both co-ops and independents; a recent supreme court decision has affirmed its legality; all RCMA over-order premiums will be collected and distributed under the direct control of a bank; costs of administration will come from over-order premiums, and not from farmers' regular milk check. These costs are projected to be approximately one cent per hundredweight.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

When Is Tomorrow?

Some say it never comes. If it finally does arrive, we call it today and then a crazy thing happens — another mythical day fills the slot that was hoped for yesterday. The only way to describe tomorrow is the day I yearned for yesterday. Or perhaps hoped that it would never come or would at least be late.

It's a funny word, tomorrow. A hit song in the musical comedy "Annie," a major theme of numerous poems, and the ultimate target of today's worries. The young can't wait for it to come, and the old fear its arrival. Somewhere in between the most of us are betting too heavily on, if not a winner, at least a better one than today.

A day to put things off until, as I so often do. Like writing a weekly column or answering letters or paying bills. Today is never a good one to do those things. The one just past was already too full, and the one after that is already pledged to the hilt, so I'll wait until the due date. It's funny how soon that one comes, and how much work can be stacked under a deadline.

All problems will be solved, all wrongs righted, and all postponed tasks completed, or well in hand. In case I forgot to mention it, the rain we need, or the sunshine and dry wind if you happen to have hay laying, will arrive TOMORROW. So will the check for the culls sent to the packer. The price of milk could go up, if the day doesn't get cancelled by an act of Congress, or an overkill in the Minnesota-Wisconsin surplus. Keep the faith baby, and keep hoping.

Lots of things will happen tomorrow, and most of it will be of benefit to someone, especially someone who is prepared for whatever comes. Most of it hinges on hope, and some on faith. But much of what happens tomorrow will happen because someone pulled the right strings. Doors don't open unless someone pulls the latch.

Tomorrow can come and go, again and again, with a lot of doors unopened because the hand held only faith or hope, with no grip left to pull the string or lift the latch.

Farm folk just naturally have a lot of faith and tons of hope, otherwise hardly anybody would be in the business. But how much power is still left in the old grip? The strings to be pulled might be a little testy or even somewhat rotten, but there are some good, sound ones, connected to our representatives in Harrisburg or Washington. Instead of just moaning about what goes on, start pulling and let them know what you think. You may be the one with an idea that will shape the future of the country, or the world.

No, the cows won't wait until tomorrow to be milked. Nor will anything of a timely nature. If the note at the bank is due today, tomorrow is too late, unless something is done today to forestall foreclosure. Just as we expect dinner to be on time, and not postponed until the cook is moved to put on the frying pan. Some things just can't wait until tomorrow. Even some of the doors within today's reach may disappear completely before tomorrow comes.

Somebody, somewhere, still finds farming either profitable or desirable enough to continue producing. A few will always find it so, and the world will always be fed. Who will be those chosen few? Maybe they will be the ones who either pull the right strings, or unlatch the correct doors. Today, not tomorrow.

PAFC Annual Meeting Planned

HARRISBURG — Dr. Ron Knutson, professor and extension economist in agricultural policy and marketing at Texas A&M University, is slated to keynote the 1986 annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives on Tuesday, October 7, according to PAFC vice president and annual meeting chairman Robert M. Dever.

Knutson, known for his candid analysis of problems and his frank evaluation of their implications for farmers, cooperatives, policymakers and other agribusinessmen, is scheduled to speak Tuesday afternoon at the Association's annual seminar, Dever said.

The annual meeting, set October 7-8, at Harrisburg's Sheraton West, also features William Perry, public affairs specialist for Milk Marketing Inc., who will deliver remarks at the annual banquet Tuesday evening.

The Association's third annual Cooperative Month kick-off is set for breakfast on Wednesday, October 8. The affair, with members of the state legislature as Association guests, is followed by the annual business session.

For registration information, contact Kathy Gill or Cindy Goodling at 717-232-PAFC or write PAFC, PO Box 12107, Harrisburg, PA 17108-2107.

Producers who have used Tylan® Sulfa-G™ know how effectively it controls respiratory diseases like atrophic rhinitis[1] and bacterial pneumonia (like Pasteurella)[2]. But there's more to Tylan Sulfa-G than just good disease control.

Tylan Feed Medication ("The Feed/Money Saver") is proven to boost a pig's gain and feed conversion, and, in combination with Sulfa-G (sulfamethazine Granurolls) provides effective respiratory disease control.

Now we give you the Tylan Sulfa-G Challenge: Compare it to your other starter/grower medications. We believe you'll like what you see. For disease control, that might mean less coughing and sneezing, or a better slaughter check.

As to resulting performance, Tylan Sulfa-G can mean faster gains on less feed, for more efficiency in practically all units. (Results of TRAC Clinics indicate that almost every herd has respiratory disease.) It all means a better return on your medication investment.

The challenge to you is to try the product; the challenge to us is to deliver on our word: Tylan Sulfa-G really works.

For more information, ask your feed man or Elanco representative about the Challenge. We're ready for you.

DISCERNING TREE TROUBLES

Check your trees for signs of poor health now. Trees in trouble usually give some warning signs of intenal or external injury. By looking for problems in the Fall, we can begin correcting the factors which cause stress to our trees all year round.

First, check your large, old trees for signs of internal rot that could weaken the tree and cause all or part of it to fall. Look especially for large open wounds, branch stubs that are poorly healed, fungi, open cracks, patches of dead bark, dead branches, dead tops, insect holes, bird nest holes and holes made by wildlife. Often root rot diseases are involved when a number of older trees like the native white pines begin to die each year. Often, these trees were infected many years ago and have reached a point where stresses like our current year drought cause the final decline. Unfortunately, there is no control for root diseases.

Injury to a tree's roots caused by construction activities can often take five to fifteen years to finally kill the tree. Consider removing large trees growing close to a house especially when they lean toward it. Prune out large branches that grow over the house that could break during a storm or under a load of snow.

Earlier than normal leaf drop can also alert us of a problem with our trees. This year many trees lost their leaves early. Often, there was no specific signs of insect or disease associated with the early leaf drop. Many times the problem is related to moisture stress caused by drought conditions over the summer months. Trees like the Golden rain tree, Dogwoods, Japanese Zelkova, Sugar and Norway Maple, Honeylocust and Linden lose their leaves early in the Fall when drought stress occurs.

Native sugar maples in the Northeast are experiencing some additional problems. This past year, they produced a heavy seed crop which may have indicated inadequate moisture or a lack of sunshine. Often road-paving reduces water supplies to the trees and increases the reflected heat. Chemicals in diesel or gasoline exhaust, brake fluids and anti-freeze from leaks may be causing additional stress to street or woodland trees. Trees like the white birches and dogwoods are extemely sensitive to their immediate surroundings. These trees often do well in the wild but in a home landscape die without the proper soil, water and air conditions.

USDA Buyout Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An estimated 24,300 head of dairy cattle were slaughtered in federally inspected plants during the week ending Aug. 23, as a result of the Dairy Termination Program, the U.S Department of Agriculture announced Wednesday.

This total includes all cows, heifers and calves identified as dairy animals designated for disposition in compliance with the program requirements.

The cumulative total of cattle slaughtered under the program from April 1 through Aug. 16 is an estimated 713,900 head.

The purchases of meat in addition to normal purchases are to help offset the effects of the DTP on the domestic meat market. These purchases, reported bi-weekly as of Sept. 6, totaled 12.7 million pounds. The cumulative purchases total 289 million pounds.

Dairy cattle reported for export under the program for the period April 1 to Sept. 6 totaled an estimated 32,118 head.

Live cattle exported under the program are expected to increase as countries develop tenders to participate in the export enhancement program.

FLO-STAR™ claw

Bou-Matic®'s Flo-Star™ milking claw improves milk flow for:

- Better cow health
- Faster milk throughput, and
- Better milk quality.

Bou-Matic engineers designed the Flo-Star claw so milk flows smoothly and quickly out the bottom.

Less agitation equals less chance of milk "mist" carrying bacteria among teats. So the Flo-Star claw can mean less mastitis spread at milking.

Manheim Teen's Hard Work Is Rewarded With Gift Colt

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondents

MANHEIM — "I had all these mixed feelings," Vickie Creighton says as she talks about the emotion she felt when she won a horse at the Elizabethtown Fair two weeks ago. Vickie, 15, was on the receiving end of a gift colt given by Gene Wenger of Gene Wenger's Meat and Fine Foods, 935 Groff Avenue, Elizabethtown.

A member of the Saddle Cinches 4-H Club for seven years, Vickie was selected to receive the quarter horse-Arabian cross yearling because of her outstanding participation in 4-H activities, and because of her proven hard work. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Creighton, R3, Manheim, and is a sophomore at Manheim Central High School.

Kendy Allen, leader of the club, said, "She had started in the club as a horseless member, with absolutely nothing, and she had shown what she could do with the production project."

Another deciding factor in awarding it to Vickie was her outstanding showing in the competition to receive a colt from Bob Evans, of restaurant fame. Kendy explained that each year he gives a colt to one 4-H'er per state in about 11 states.

"Every year we pick out a kid to fill out the application." This year Vickie won on the county level, on the district level and was one of three finalists in the state. "That is the farthest anyone from Lancaster County has ever gone, Kendy noted. "It was a very close contest."

In filling out the "very long" application, Vickie said she answered the question about why she wanted the horse by saying, "I really wanted to be in the production club again."

To be in the production club a member must have a horse under three years old. Vickie had been a member with her three-year-old, the son of her first 4-H project, Sheba. However, her 23-year-old mare got sick and died in the winter, leaving her without the possibility of having a baby for a production project, Vickie says, "I was looking for another baby to raise."

That's one reason why winning the Wenger horse meant so much to her. Another reason was that last year she won a free breeding from Gene Wenger's Arabian stallion, but since her mare died she had not been able to use it. Wenger said it was like a "story book ending," to have her win the colt since she was unable to use the breeding.

For Wenger, donating the colt to a 4-H member was more than just good public relations for his market. He says, "It's simple arithmetic. You have to sow seeds if you want to reap; you have to give if you want to get."

A 4-H'er himself for four years with the Boots and Saddles 4-H Club, Wenger said it was a good learning experience and he had a good time in 4-H. His 4-H project animal was his first horse, and he's had horses ever since. He and his family are now "down to seven horses."

About the colt Wenger says, "He was a show colt from the day he was born. He has excellent conformation and he is a very athletic colt." When he decided to donate the colt, he offered it to the Saddle and Cinches Club where he and his wife Doris were leaders for four years and said he was looking for it to have a home with someone who would show him and help him reach his potential.

He said, "Vickie will do an excellent job. I am very pleased with the selection."

Registered as Dancer's Change, Vickie has affectionately nicknamed the colt "Dimples." A free gelding service was also donated to Vickie by Dr. Henry Fortna of Ephrata.

Vickie did not grow up on a horse farm, and, in fact, it was three years after she had joined 4-H before she got her own horse, Sheba, the mare which died last winter.

She said, "Sheba was 23 years old, so she had a good life, but it was traumatic. She was my first horse. I learned on her." She added that Sheba was an especially nice first horse because of her gentle disposition. Also, "She never got sick. I had complete trust in her."

Dumplin was Vickie's second 4-H animal, and she proved to be very different from Sheba. She is very curious, very high-spirited and is always a challenge to show because of wanting to observe all that is happening around the ring.

Vickie rides English now, though she started out riding Western before she got her own horse. She likes English and has found that her horses are very well suited for that style of riding. She likes it, too, because, "You can jump." Because of Dumplin's fast trot he is not suited for Western riding. "His natural gait is fast."

She adds, "Dumplin is really spirited. He is only a baby in riding him." She says the new horse seems calmer, adding, "He should be easier to train."

Going into the show ring used to be a scary experience for Vickie, but she says, "Kendy has helped me with schooling for my horse. She has taught me to be proud of my horse when I am in the ring."

Vickie Creighton, 15, shows off her new colt, Dimples, at her home north of Manheim. A member of the Saddle Cinches 4-H Club, Vickie won the colt which was donated by Gene Wenger, owner of Wenger's Meat and Fine Foods, Elizabethtown.

Vickie's parents admit they are learning about horses with her.

But 4-H is not just riding horses. Vickie says, "I like 4-H because I like being with different people, and I like the different activities you can do with your horse." She said her club goes on trail rides, sponsors pony rides at fairs and festivals, and often holds small shows just for club members to learn.

Saddles and Cinches Club has a point awards system whereby 4-H'ers get credit for their participation. They get points if they help with the fund raisers, if they help collect cans, if they participate in club and county 4-H activities. Rewards at the end of the Club year are given based on these points.

Vickie points out that this "encourages you" and it serves the purpose of letting those who may not have the finest horse do well because of their own initiative. Kendy adds, "Whether you have a horse or not, you can get points."

Asked how much time she devotes to caring for the horse, Vickie says, "During the summer I spend most of my time with them. In the winter with school and field hockey I spend about 1½ to 2 hours a day." She feeds them before going to school in the morning, and works with them when she returns in the evening.

She adds, "I try to ride every day." Often she can be seen riding Dumplin with Dimples following along. "It gives him exercise." She points out that she must wait until Dimples is two years old before riding him.

Vickie enjoys the production aspect of her horse club experience, and here works on records for Dumplin.

Vickie is not just involved in horses in 4-H. She is also a member of the Mastersonville 4-H Club, where she has taken projects in candlewicking, candy making, ceramics, cake decorating, flower arranging and grapevine wreaths. Her parents are leaders, with Sandy teaching candy making and Tom teaching rocketry.

She has attended Leadership Congress at Penn State, and was on the county Horse Bowl team at State Days in August. Though the team did not fare too well, Vickie says she enjoyed the experience.

She said, "I learned a lot being on the farm, but I have to learn more." With her goal of becoming a veterinarian, she said she believes the horse bowl information has been valuable.

Without qualification she says she recommends that other young people join 4-H. She says, "I used to be very quiet. It has made me a better person."

Vickie has been a teen leader for two years, and worked with younger 4-H'ers in her club.

She adds, "4-H is my whole spring and summer." Nevertheless, she finds time to participate in school musicals, chorus and track and attends youth group at Calvary Independent Church in Lancaster.

Despite her successes, she has some future goals for 4-H. Vickie says, "I want to make it to states riding. It's a highlight and not many people make it." Other projects she would like to take include tin punching and counted crosstitch.

With her skill and positive attitude, it is certain that Vickie's 4-H career is still on the way up. Dimples, the newest addition, will help her make some of her dreams come true.

Owning a horse requires a lot of hard work, and Vickie spends about one and a half hours daily with Dimples and Dumplin, her 4-H animals. Dimples is the newest addition, awarded to Vickie for her participation in club, county and state activities.

Now Is The Time To Preserve Pears

Frenchmen say "poire," Italians "pera," and Germans "birne." All describe that succulent refreshing fruit known since antiquity — the pear. Pears know no recorded evolution, with varieties of thorny wild pears existing in prehistoric times.

This is the time of year local and western pears appear at produce counters. Now is the time to preserve pears for delicious eating during the coming months.

Pears are picked while still green and hard, for they are the exception to the rule that tree-ripened fruit is tastiest. The pears should then be stored in a cool place (60 to 65°F.) until they are ripe, but not soft. Check pears daily and can only those that are ripe.

Bartlett pears are considered best for canning, but Kieffers, Flemish Beauty, Gorham, and Winter Nellis are also satisfactory. Approximately 17½ pounds of fresh pears are required for a canner load of seven quarts.

How To Can Pears

Wash and pare pears. Cut in half and core. Use a melon ball cutter or measuring teaspoon to remove cores. Remove any diseased or decayed spots. Slice if desired. Place halves or slices directly into water containing 2 tablespoons salt and 2 tablespoons vinegar per gallon of water to prevent darkening.

Prepare a light syrup (2 cups granulated sugar to 4 cups water). Drain pears. Cook them in the boiling hot syrup for 5 minutes. Pack hot, into hot jars, leaving ½ inch head space. Cover with boiling syrup, leaving ½ inch head space. Adjust lids. Process pints 20 minutes, quarts 25 minutes in boiling water bath.

Cinnamon Pears . . . Add 2 sticks cinnamon and a few drops of red food color to each quart of syrup. Remove cinnamon before packing pears. Follow processing times given above.

How To Freeze Pears

Select pears that are crisp and firm, not mealy in texture. Wash, peel, core, and drop into water containing 2 tablespoons of salt and 2 tablespoons vinegar per gallon of water to prevent darkening.

Prepare a 40 percent syrup (3 cups sugar to 4 cups water) and boil. Blanch drained pears for 2 minutes in hot syrup, cool and pack in freezer containers, allowing 1-inch head space. Cover with cool syrup. Seal, label and freeze.

Pickled Pears

4 quarts small pears
Whole cloves
⅓ ounce stick cinnamon (about six 3-inch pieces)
8 cups sugar (4 cups granulated and 4 cups brown sugar may be used, or all brown sugar)
1 quart vinegar

Wash pears. Peel and core or leave whole.

Stick each pear with 4 cloves. Or, put cloves loosely in a clean cheesecloth bag.

Boil spices, sugar and vinegar together for 2 minutes.

Put pears into syrup and boil gently until soft, using half the quantity of pears at a time.

Pack into hot, sterilized jars. Seal. Process 10 minutes in boiling water bath. Makes 3 quarts.

Pear Relish

Excellent hamburger spread or a tangy compliment to cold meats.

8 cups ground pears
2 cups ground onion
6 green or red bell peppers, ground
1 ground hot pepper or 1 tablespoon hot pepper sauce
4 ground dill pickles
3 tablespoons dry mustard
1 quart white wine vinegar
¼ cup flour
1 tablespoon tumeric
2 tablespoons salt
2 cups sugar

Mix all ingredients and stir well. Bring to rolling boil over medium-high heat. Cook 15 minutes. Pack in jars, and seal. Process 5 minutes in boiling water bath. Makes 7 pints.

How To Dry Pears

The Bartlett pear is the best variety for drying. Peel; cut in half lengthwise and core. Cut in quarters or eighths, or in slices. To prevent darkening coat with a solution of 2½ teaspoons of pure crystalline ascorbic acid in 1 cup of water. Steam blanch for 5 to 20 minutes depending on size of pears.

Spread in single layers on trays. Under controlled heat, start drying pears at 130°F., increase gradually to 150°F. after the first hour. Reduce to 140°F. for last hour.

The fruit is dry when it appears springy and suede-like. There will be no moisture when it is cut and squeezed. Drying time for halves, about 15 hours; for slices, about six hours.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

There they hang, in their crowning glory, along the back wall of the basement. Red, blue, green, brown, navy. An occasional white one saved for "good."

Periodically, I'll fish one from a basement corner, or off a kitchen chair, or from the barn office, carry it in, and relieve it of the patina achieved by rubbing into the fabric cow hair, manure, grease, sticky haylage, corn dust and fly spray.

Hats. Every farmer it seems has his favorite. And hats – I figure – are a lot like tennis shoes: the more "broke in" they get, the better they fit. Frankly, don't spread it around, but some of 'em get pretty ratty looking.

Fact is, it's probably against the law to wear some of the hats I've washed in my tenure as a farm wife. 'Er, at least it probably would be in a place called Rock Springs, Wyoming.

Y'see, there's a law there that forbids wearing a hat when milking cows which "would scare a timid person." Some of the hats that I've crossed paths with would scare a courageous person.

That way-out piece of legislation is just one of the many goofy regulations on the books around the country focused on in a book called LOONY LAWS, by Robert W. Pelton, and published by Walker and Co.

And some of the dairy-related regulations might send all us dairymen into the lockup if they were enforced in our neighborhoods.

For instance, there's an anti-mooing law in DeQuincy, LA, prohibiting cows from mooing before 8 a.m. or after 4 p.m. On the other hand, in Kidderville, NH, cows are not allowed to moo within 300 feet of a residence.

Combine those with a regulation from Colby, KS, and we'd be in real trouble. There, no cow is allowed out at night without a bell. No doubt to help track down the culprit who's been mooing at midnight just 100 feet from a residence. On the other hand, in West Union, Ohio, any cow found wandering around after sunset can be picked up and auctioned off. (This farm could be in big trouble on that one.)

Don't take a cow into your hotel room in Bourbon, MS, on a Sabbath day. And don't drive it down the city streets of Upperville, VA, on a Sabbath, either. We can presume that if you do either on a Tuesday, you might escape arrest.

Of course, you can ride a cow down the street – presumably any day – in Bowman, ND, as long as you don't do it "in a violent manner." But don't drive one down the street in White Fish, MO, if you're wearing a mask, because that's illegal.

Then, again, you aren't allowed to ride a cow at all in Lowes Crossroads, DE, if you're a woman wearing shorts, who weighs more than 200 pounds. Now I say, is that discriminatory or what?

And here's where you can't keep cows: in the bathtub of your backyard in Orwell, VT; or in your apartment in Sturgis, SD; or in a bakery in Rosette, Utah.

To say nothing of the ordinance in White Horse, NM, against walking behind a cow without holding a conversation with it. One wonders what the topics of conversation would be... what does a cow like to converse about.

Obviously, there have been lots of laws passed that, at the time, met some serious need in the community.

It would no doubt make for fascinating reading to research some of the incidents that led to the passages of these loony laws.

On the other hand, maybe it's better if we just don't know.

Pinch Pennies With Ground Beef

A recent study by the USDA listed ground beef as one of the best meat buys available to homemakers. At an average price of $1.16 per pound, ground beef is a dollar stretcher you can count on.

Fortunately, ground beef isn't just inexpensive; it's versatile and tastes great too! Try it in Naomi Blank's hamburger soup and in the meat loaf pate pictured here.

The other recipes below offer a host of ideas for utilizing this favorite meat.

ANSWER - Last week Cook's Question Corner had two zucchini cookie recipes to share with Mrs. Leo Barsnica of Neshanic Station, N.J. This week, Mrs. Ray Seidel, Lenhartsville shares one more.

Zucchini Peanut Butter Cookies

1½ cups flour
½ cup crunchy peanut butter
1 cup grated unpared zucchini
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ cup margarine
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped roasted peanuts
½ cup chocolate bits

Cut peanut butter into flour. In another bowl, thoroughly combine zucchini, soda, sugars and margarine Add egg, combine with flour mixture and add vanilla. Stir in peanuts and chocolate bits Chill dough two hours or longer Drop by teaspoons onto greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F) for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes about 6 dozen.

ANSWER - The Aug 30 Cook's Question Corner contained a Crabapple Gems recipe for Dorothy S. Riesterer of New Providence. This week, Anne C Holst of E. Greenwich, R.I., shares another crabapple recipe which she says dates to 1922.

Bean-Pot Apples

Peel, quarter and core the apples, place in an earthenware bean-pot or covered crock, in layers, sprinkling each layer with sugar and cinnamon Red Hots (little red candies), adjusting sugar to tartness of apples and desired sweetness of product. Barely cover the apples in the bean-pot with new, sweet cider Cover bean-pot or crock, and bake in a slow (325°F) oven for 2 to 3 hours The apples should turn a wine red, be very tender, but not broken. Serve hot or cold with cream, or a thin, cold custard sauce for dessert Or, can "hot from the pot as a very sweet relish or in place of applesauce with pork

Note: I have made it with Rhode Island Greening apples and Sapson apples, but never with old-fashioned crab apples, which are so miniature one would have to use them whole, just stemming and washing thoroughly.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

It seems that things are always changing and I don't just mean the weather. One day the sky is blue and the sun shines and we feel on top of the world. Then comes a dreary day with a light drizzle and we'd like to just curl up with a good book and let the rest of the world go by if only we could find the time.

Our family decreases in number and then increases in number. When I drive by a local nursing home, I think of my mother and aunt who have passed on and also of my husband's mother and his aunt who are no longer there. It makes me feel that I am one step closer to being there too.

However, a daughter became engaged this summer and that will add a young man to our family. Two other children have brought special friends here to meet us. And, just last month a grandson was born in Atlanta, Ga. I don't know when I'll get to see him, but if his picture does him justice, he is a pretty baby.

Over Labor Day weekend my cooking took a different turn too. It changed from two for dinner to six — and four were men. Philip drove in from Chicago and helped to bale and store 1,000 bales of hay in one day. That should help his father, who struggles on alone.

We had only one tiger cat here on the farm until recently. She brought me a rat or a mouse almost every morning and deposited it on the back porch mat. But, now I have five half-grown kittens to feed. They are quite wild and come out of the corn field only to be fed and then dash back in again. I'm sure it will take a while to tame them.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Microwaving Mashed Potatoes

When you first start using a microwave, sometimes simple cooking jobs can be a challenge. Mashed potatoes and gravy are good examples. What container? What power level? How long? And so forth.

Today, we'll take the challenge out of the potatoes. It is really easy to microwave this old favorite. Next week we'll microwave the gravy to go on top. (But I hope you don't save your potatoes for a whole week — they'll be cold, grey and yukky by then!)

The nice thing about microwaving potatoes for mashing, is that it's quick, but the potatoes never scorch or burn dry if you are side-tracked!

Here are the important things to remember when you are microwaving potatoes to be mashed:

1. Peel and cut potatoes into a uniform size. They may either be cubed in about 1-inch cubes, or sliced ¼-inch thick. Cut giant potatoes in half before slicing.

2. Don't use as much water as you do when you boil them on the stove. If you use the full amount of water, it will take too long. I use ½ cup water for each pound of potatoes. If you use less than this, as is recommended in some microwave cookbooks, the potatoes are quite dry. This makes them difficult to mash without getting lumps.

2. Use hot tap water to save microwave time. If you use cold water, add several minutes to the cooking time.

3. Don't add salt until after the potatoes are microwaved. Salt dehydrates root vegetables, and will make the potato pieces tough and hard to mash smoothly.

4. Microwave the potatoes, tightly covered, for 8 to 9 minutes per pound. This is longer than needed for baked potatoes, but they get very soft for mashing this way. Stir two or three times during microwaving for evenly cooked pieces.

5. Let the potatoes stand, covered, for at least 5 minutes before mashing. Don't skip this step! Every time I'm in a hurry and do so, I get lumpy results! All the pieces should be fork tender after the standing time.

6. Mash as you would stove cooked potatoes, or follow one of the recipes below.

Weighing the potatoes is the most accurate way to determine the cooking time. If you don't have a scale, figure that one pound of potatoes is about two huge ones, four medium ones, or six or seven small potatoes.

Rich and Creamy Mashed Potatoes

2 pounds potatoes
1 cup hot water
¼ cup butter or margarine, cut in several pieces
¼ cup milk
¼ cup sour cream or 3 ounces cream cheese
½ teaspoon salt, or to taste

1. Peel potatoes, slice evenly and put in a 2 quart casserole or glass mixing bowl. Add hot water. Cover tightly with lid or plastic wrap.

2. Microwave on high for 16 to 18 minutes, stirring twice, until potatoes are tender. Let stand for 5 minutes.

3. Drain, mash, then add remaining ingredients and whip until smooth. Serves 4 to 6.

These potatoes are lighter on calories, and on your food budget, since they use economical dry milk.

Light Mashed Potatoes

2 pounds potatoes
1 cup hot water
3 tablespoons dry milk powder
3 tablespoons margarine, cut in pieces
½ teaspoon salt

1. Peel potatoes, slice evenly and put in a 2-quart casserole or glass mixing bowl. Add hot water. Cover tightly with lid or plastic wrap.

2. Microwave on high for 16 to 18 minutes, stirring twice, until potatoes are tender. Let stand for 5 minutes. Do not drain potatoes! Add remaining ingredients and whip until smooth. Serves 4 to 6.

Tip: Mashed potatoes reheat well. If they cool down too much while mashing, spoon into 1½ quart casserole or serving dish. Cover and microwave on high for 3 to 4 minutes (use 160°F. on temperature probe).

To reheat left over mashed potatoes, spoon cold potatoes into a ring in a casserole, cover and microwave on high for 3 minutes. Stir, recover, and repeat until potatoes are hot. The time will depend on the quantity. Use your probe (160°F.) if your oven has one.

Complete Fall Garden Projects

NEWARK, Del. — The end of summer doesn't mark the end of home garden projects. According to Delaware State College extension agent Glenn Layton, fall is the ideal time for many planting and routine maintenance chores. He offers the following calendar as a guide.

September:

• Seed bare spots in the lawn that are larger than 6 to 8 inches in diameter.

• Feed the lawn with a 12-4-8 or 16-4-8 slow-release, turf grade fertilizer.

• If the lawn is suffering from a heavy buildup of thatch (dead grass), remove this as it may be restricting the air supply needed for proper root development.

• Kill dandelions, plantain and other broadleaf weeds in your lawn with 2, 4-d. To control winter annuals such as German moss, chickweed and henbit, include MCPP and Dicamba (Banvel) in the herbicide mix. Combinations of these chemicals are sold commercially as Trimec and Trex-San.

• Plant groundcovers where desired.

• Prune dead and diseased limbs from trees and shrubs.

• Prepare garden soil for next year by planting a cover crop.

• Prune raspberry plants; remove old and diseased canes.

October:

• Plant Dutch bulbs in groups of the same variety and color for a pleasing mass effect.

• Test soil pH for lime requirements. Lime is needed every three to four years.

• Start a compost pile by alternating layers of soil, disease-free plant material, fertilizer and manure.

• Transplant and separate peonies to rejuvenate plants and increase their number.

• Harvest winter squash, pumpkins and gourds before frost. Cure them at 75 to 80 degrees for a week, then store them at 50 to 60 degrees until ready to use.

Kid's Korner

Johnsongrass, regarded as one of the world's 10 worst weeds, thrives in much of the world and is a major nuisance to farmers in the southeastern United States. The galloping grass can soar as high as 10 feet, choking out crops. It multiplies through both seeds and underground stems called rhizomes.

Farmers Wage War On Johnsongrass

LIBERTYTOWN, Md. – Toweling herbicide off their faces and exposed arms, the two sweaty men, standing in a field of johnsongrass taller than their heads, might wishfully ponder this statement from a 1980 agricultural pamphlet:

"Old-timers say the best way to get rid of johnsongrass is to have hungry billy goats dare it to come up."

No such luck for Walter Haydel and Glenn Pearl, who have spent an arduous morning spraying a smelly chemical solution on the tenacious plant described by scientists as one of the world's 10 worst weeds.

Haydel, a 33-year-old agronomist, is a weed-control specialist with the Maryland Department of Agriculture. Pearl, a retired dairy farmer, supervises the Frederick County johnsongrass program.

Grass Wars

Singly and together, they and their tank trucks wage continual summertime warfare on johnsongrass, a scourge of farmers in many parts of the world and in much of the United States, particularly the Southeast.

Maryland has a more aggressive anti-johnsongrass program than any other state. Under a 1969 law, state residents are required to keep it under control. Failure to comply can mean a stiff fine or a jail sentence. So far, nobody's gone to jail.

Pressure from authorities usually produces the desired result. "The last thing I want to do is take a farmer into court," says Jesse Crook, supervisor of the state's weed-control operation. "It's a never-ending problem."

The round-stemmed, broad-leafed grass soars as high as 10 feet. It reproduces both from seeds and from wildly proliferating rootlike underground stems called rhizomes.

Seeds may lie dormant for years before sprouting. Once it has flowered, a single johnsongrass plant may produce 200 to 300 feet of rhizomes in a month.

So says plant physiologist Chester G. McWhorter, who may know more about johnsongrass than anybody else in the country. McWhorter is director of the U.S. Agricultural Research Service's Southern Weed Science Laboratory at Stoneville, Miss. He has written about most aspects of the weed, including its long and dubious history.

Its origins are murky, but McWhorter thinks it was known in the Middle East 200 to 300 years ago. Johnsongrass probably made its way to this country early in the 19th century, but its true identity was surrounded by confusion. It had at least eight Latin names and more than 40 common names, including guinea grass, Samoa grass, Cuba grass, Egyptian grass, Meanie grass, Arabian millet, and bankruptcy grass.

Colonel Johnson's Folly

The name that has stuck, robbed of the dignity of capitalization, is attributed to Col. William Johnson, owner of a plantation at Marion Junction, near Selma, Ala. He presumably brought it to Alabama as cattle fodder before the Civil War.

Both Union and Confederate troops, aided by the digestive tracts of their horses, helped spread johnsongrass throughout the southeastern United States during the war. By the 1870s it was recognized as a major agricultural problem; by the end of the century it had spread to most parts of the country.

It even leaps oceans. In the late 1800s, it was brought to Samoa — reportedly by Robert Louis Stevenson.

"Its pernicious nature led to the first federal appropriation specifically for weed control in 1900," McWhorter writes. Two years later, the first report on johnsongrass control appeared. Agronomists are still looking for ways to get rid of the pervasive pest.

McWhorter and other scientists see hope for improved control as a result of continuing research, particularly with the introduction of what McWhorter calls "some beautiful new herbicides" that are highly selective for broadleaf crops.

In Maryland, Glenn Pearl and Walter Haydel brace themselves against the 300-gallon tank mounted on the bed of Pearl's four-wheel-drive pickup. As Pearl's wife, Bessie, maneuvers between rows of corn, they shoot herbicide at patches of johnsongrass that rise above 25 acres of drought-stunted corn.

Next to the cornfield are seven uncultivated acres of johnsongrass, thistles, poison ivy, and brambles. Haydel sprays them from his truck with a 38-foot boom.

Chemicals Costly, Risky

Such spraying isn't cheap. This morning's work will cost the landowner about $300, Pearl estimates. The sprayers have been careful to keep the herbicide off the corn whenever possible, because the chemicals kill whatever plants they touch.

Short of hungry billy goats, agricultural researchers have experimented with every imaginable means of controlling the resilient weed. Geese have been used to feed on it. Seasonal flooding has prevented germination in some southern states. Before butane and propane became too expensive, grass along

Philadelphia Cook Tops Egg Recipe Contest

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Daryl Urzen of Philadelphia captured first place in the Pennsylvania Egg Recipe Contest with her Avocado Egg Salad recipe here Saturday.

Mrs. Urzen was one of five finalists competing for a $1,000 prize and an opportunity to compete in the national contest. The finalists were selected from a pool of over 700 entries.

The winning recipe combines hard boiled eggs with avocados and chopped tomatoes for a nutritious and tasty end product.

"Avocados are highly nutritious. Combined with the protein in eggs, the salad is highly nutritious," Mrs. Urzen said.

The Avocado Egg Salad can be served individually on lettuce leaves on salad plates or in sandwiches, Mrs. Urzen said. For sandwiches, she suggests slicing round rolls in half, removing most of the bread within and filling the cavities with the salad. For a buffet, allow guests to spread the salad on thinly sliced French bread.

Mrs. Urzen said she spent about six months developing and perfecting her easy-to-assemble recipe. She said this is the first state-wide recipe contest she has entered.

Other finalists competing received $100 checks for their participation. They were: Phyllis Dobson of Liberty, Mrs. Tim Hoober of New Holland, Mrs. Sandra L. Nocivelli of Apollo, and Ms. Tina Washington of Lebanon.

Judges for the event were Alletta Schadler, Lebanon County Extension home economist; Mrs. Kay King, mother of the Pennsylvania poultry queen; and Judy Mentzer, a free lance home economist and consultant for Victor Weaver, Inc.

The contest is sponsored by the Department of Agriculture, the Pennsylvania Egg Marketing Association and the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation.

For a copy of Mrs Urzen's winning recipe, turn to the featured recipe on page B6 canals was sometimes burned.

The most effective method now in use, researchers say, is a combination of chemicals and plowing, crop rotation, pasturing, and mowing. "A good farmer's not going to have johnsongrass on his place," says Thomas N. Jordan, a professor of weed science at Purdue University.

Lest it be thought that johnsongrass is unduly libeled, it should be noted that it's actually welcome in some places. It can prevent erosion. And on the prairies of Texas and Oklahoma, it is food for cattle.

Still, in much of the world the adaptable tall grass marches on, unloved and unwanted, a nuisance at best and an economic threat at worst.

USDA Permits Binders In Restructured Meat Products

WASHINGTON — Effective Sept. 17, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will permit meat processors to use a combination of dry substances to create a binder for restructured meat products. The rule will require the name of the binder to be included on the label next to the product's name.

Restructuring is the process of taking flaked, sectioned or chunked meat and binding the pieces to resemble intact cuts of meat. The final products take on a variety of shapes such as nuggets, roasts, loaves and steaks.

The use of binders will expand marketing of restructured products because they can be sold as fresh, according to Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service. Under current technology, restructured products are usually cooked or frozen to retain their restructured form.

"We've reviewed analytical data indicating that the binder can be used safely to maintain the cohesiveness of raw, restructured meat products," said Houston. "The binder also works for frozen and precooked pieces."

The binder is formed by combining sodium alginate, calcium carbonate, lactic acid and calcium lactate. When these compounds are added to raw meat pieces, they react to form calcium alginate, the compound that holds the pieces together. All of the substances have been approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

The final product is allowed to contain 1.0 percent sodium alginate, 0.2 percent calcium carbonate and 0.3 percent lactic acid and calcium lactate, which is consistent with the 1.5 percent of dry mixture that FDA allows in the finished product. These substances must be applied when dry, because water can cause the binding compound — calcium alginate — to exceed FDA's standard.

Under the rule, processors can use the dry binder as an alternative to sodium chloride and phosphate salts, which may reduce the sodium content of the restructured products, said Houston. Sodium chloride and phosphate salts are used for flavor and to aid in the binding of restructured meat products.

In addition, the rule requires that the binder be part of the product name. For example, the name for a restructured beef roast-type product may be "Beef—chopped, shaped and formed, sodium alginate, lactic acid, calcium lactate and calcium carbonate added as a binder."

The final rule responds to a petition by the Colorado State University Research Foundation in Fort Collins, Colorado, requesting the approval of a dry binding mixture for certain raw or cooked, restructured formed meat products.

NOBODY HAS MORE HORSEPOWER UNDER FORTY.

Under forty horses, nobody sells more tractors than we do. One reason is simple. We give you more choices.

There are sixteen compact sizes, each a different model. One of them should fit you perfectly. And once you settle on the horsepower, there are still more choices.

Pick special options like 4-wheel drive, power steering or a hydraulic shuttle transmission. Or choose a Kubota-made implement, the best match for any of our Kubota tractors.

There are, however, a couple of decisions we've made for you.

For example, Kubota's own liquid-cooled diesel engine comes standard in every model. An advanced design, it's built for efficient operation. So a little horsepower works like more.

We've also chosen the color.

Fashion Show Promotes Unique Clothing

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

MOUNT JOY – Marian and Elvin Brenneman's dairy farm near Mount Joy provided an unusual setting for an unusual tea and fashion show.

The show featured one-of-a-kind fashions created by Denise David-Baer and the luncheon showcased a variety of foods prepared by Maggie Keeler of Leola and Lynda Brosey of Bainbridge.

Seventy-five people tasted the delicious food while seated at small tables in the front yard near the farm house, with Marian's Lavender Patch gift shop in the background. Food ranged from cucumber and watercress sandwiches to anise bread with lemon thyme butter. Desserts featured lavender patch cheesecake, plum-basil thumbprint cookies and fennel shortbread.

Models passed some of the food as they strolled among the tables, offering peach cookie and lemon-lime petit fours.

It was the unique fashions which created the interest, however. All the fashions were created for one person, and none will be duplicated. In contrast to most fashion shows, it was announced before the show that the clothing was not for sale.

Ranging from "country casual to sophisticated formal," the garments showcased the skills of designer David-Baer. Each was designed with much input by the clients, including consideration of coloring, personality, the occasion to be worn and the fabric desired.

Ranging from a casual bare-midriff skirt and top to wedding dresses, the clothing featured fine attention to detail as well as an enduring kind of style. Many of the outfits featured accents of antique lace, a touch favored by this designer.

She travels to antique shops and shows as far away as New England to find the laces she likes to use. Denise said she prefers to use fine quality fabrics in her creations and travels to the garment district of New York City, to Philadelphia and to G Street in Rockville, Md. for the perfect fabric.

Denise is moving to rural Lancaster County from her country home near Wrightsville in York County. She will be living with her husband, Gary, on Second Lock Road near New Danville. The old home they are restoring there will have space for a shop and work area.

When asked how the idea for the fashion show came about, Marian said, "Denise was designing for myself and my friends and I believe in backing my friends." The two had met earlier at a craft show, and David-Baer designed a wedding dress for Marian's daughter LuAnn, as well as dresses for Marian and her mother. The three generation dresses were modeled in the show.

Although Denise said she will custom design any kind of clothing from casual to career, she clearly enjoys the challenge of creating special occasion dresses. A highlight of the show was a first communion dress for 8-year-old Courtney Axe of Lancaster. Commentator Ann Miller related that Courtney had had very specific ideas about her dress, and Denise admitted that this youngster was more definite than many older people. However, her specific requests enabled Denise to create a beautiful dress, perfect for the child and the occasion.

(Turn to Page B19)

Denise David-Baer, right, thanks the models as they take a final bow after the fashion show. Each of the garments is one-of-a-kind, designed in consultation with a client.

The luncheon table was filled with goodies prepared with herbal accents. Guests could choose from tea sandwiches, fresh fruit compote and a wide variety of quick breads as well as delicious, intricately fashioned desserts.

Tea and fashions were featured Sunday at the farm of Marian and Elvin Brenneman, near Mount Joy. Guests were treated to lunch at tables topped by striped umbrellas on the lawn, as models showed the fashions created by Denise David-Baer.

Styer Family Finds Produce Business Enjoyable Despite Long Hours

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

LEWISBURG — What's it like being the wife of a produce farmer.

Cathy Styer, a native born Pittsburgher, says she's writing a book about her experiences as a produce farmer's wife entitled, "If They Could See Me Now."

Daisy Styer, Cathy's sister-in-law, notes she never gets up or goes to bed before she has to.

Edna Styer, mother-in-law of Cathy and Daisy, observes she feels guilty sitting down sometimes."

Each of the three women works fulltime helping her husband operate a farm produce market. The Styer families represent a total of 60 years of produce marketing.

Edna Styer and her husband, Ralph, of Muncy, have been in the produce business for 43 years. Potatoes and blueberries are their major crops although they also retail pears, strawberries, and blackberries. Of their 20 acres of potatoes, most will be sold wholesale, Edna says.

Daisy and Tom Styer, Muncy, began their operation 11 years ago. This year they planted 21 acres of sweet corn, 15 acres of pumpkins, and 10 acres of strawberries on their 75 acre farm. They grow a variety of crops such as peppers and cucumbers and four years ago added a greenhouse which enables them to raise their own vegetable and flower plants.

After working with Ralph and Edna for a time, Cathy and Sam Styer purchased a 100-acre farm near Lewisburg where they opened a produce market five and half years ago. They furnish peppers and tomatoes for a nearby cannery, although their biggest crop this year was 30 acres planted in pumpkins. They retail pumpkins along with strawberries, black raspberries, cabbage and various kinds of beans.

The three women were seated on runged chairs around a much used wooden table on a recent evening in Daisy's family room. It was 8 p.m., the end of a 17 or 18 hour day for some, in the midst of their busiest season. And the women discussed what it is like to be the wife of a produce farmer.

Cathy, scurrying in at 8 p.m. and the last to arrive, observed shortly that she'd had no lunch, or supper and had seen almost nothing of her husband all day. Daisy nodded assent when she heard Cathy mention the omitted meals.

Then brows wrinkled for a few minutes as they discussed whether the first frost of the season might occur that evening. Predicted temperatures were near freezing levels. If the frost materialized, tender peppers and cucumbers would require irrigation to prevent freezing.

In each of their produce operations the women said their primary responsibility was to manage the market while their husbands took care of planting and harvesting the crops. Although when busy, they said, everyone, including other family members, helped do whatever was needed to get the work done.

"I still help in the fields when needed and Tom helps in the market when he's needed," Daisy remarked.

How well were the women able to mesh their roles as wives and mothers with the long hours demanded to run a successful produce operation? Edna, with the help of Ralph, reared six children while helping maintain a market; she says she took things "from day to day. You did what you had to do."

Cathy, Edna and Daisy Styer share a late-night cup of coffee after a long day.

For Cathy, who came 12 years ago from the city to the country, life on the farm has been a continuing revelation. She still recalls her first close encounter with a cow. "She was huge," she said. And although her father-in-law assured her she would come to like chickens, she hasn't yet. She still feels intimidated by them, she explained. Not by their size, but by their very numbers.

With a degree in business and secretarial science, Cathy worked for a public utility in Pittsburgh before she married. Subsequently, she says, she learned that "farmers do not have a time schedule" and claims she now puts in "36 hour days."

Getting back to how she blends roles, Cathy observed, "It is hard to do it all." She gets up at 4:45 a.m. but sometimes finds herself hanging up clothes at 7 p.m. Cathy and Sam are the parents of Jean, 12, and Robyn, 9.

"It's funsville trying to fit everybody into the schedule," Daisy observes with a similar comment. Finding enough time to do housework and getting meals on time for her family are a constant challenge.

In what has to be some kind of a record, Daisy reports that one night Tom's supper was warmed up seven times due to interruptions before he was able to eat it. Daisy and Tom have three children, twins, Keith and Kevin, 18, and Richard, 15.

What part of their market operation do the women enjoy most? Cathy and Daisy mentioned they enjoyed giving farm tours to children.

"I enjoy my tours. They're a lot of work and I'm dead tired, but I enjoy it," Cathy states.

On the tours, Cathy says, the children visit and feed farm animals such as chickens and pigs, go for a hayride, pick a pumpkin, and then snack on cider and apples. Other groups such as Brownies, Scout troops, and the handicapped enjoy the tours.

According to Daisy, 2,800 kids toured her farm last year.

The tours, Cathy and Daisy agree, serve as their number one promotional tool. When the children are allowed to do something such as feed the chickens, Daisy says, they remember it and come back.

In addition to liking the people, Edna listed another reason for enjoying the produce business. She said she enjoyed being together with Ralph. The Styers have been married almost 50 years.

"It's altogether different when they go off to work," she observed. "I've enjoyed having Dad around . . . Raising six kids, it was a big help."

What did the ladies like least about their operation?

"The hassle. It's always a hassle," Daisy replied with no hesitation. "Everybody wants everything when it's not ripe."

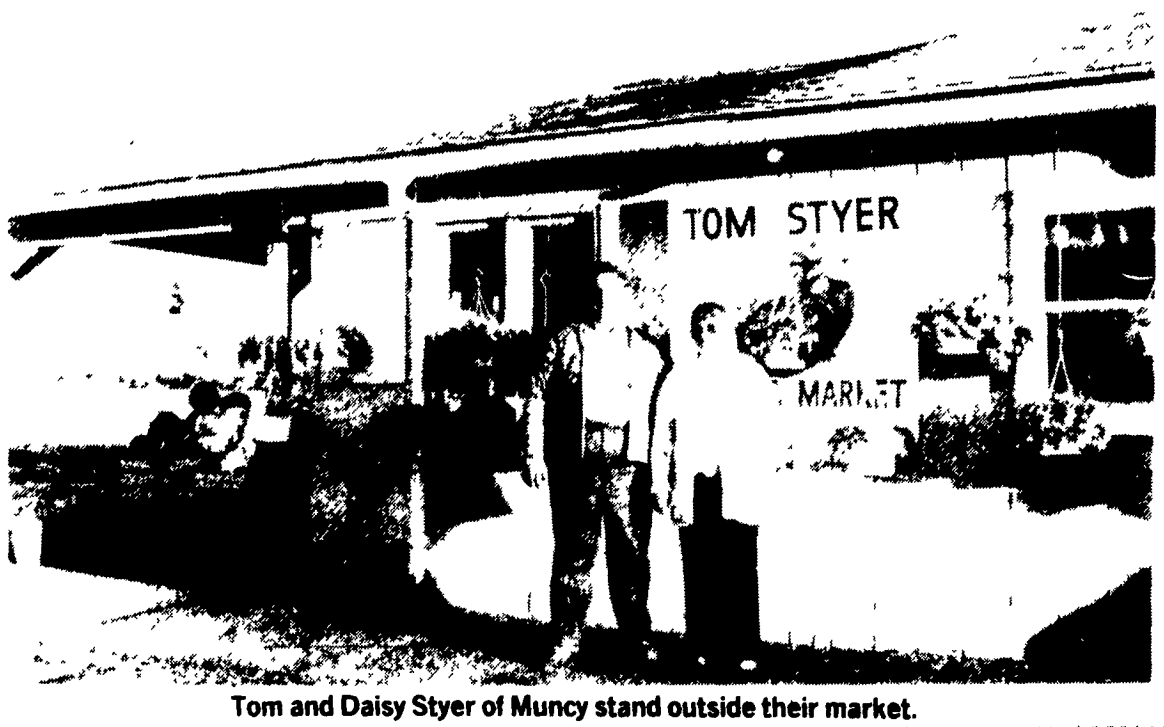
"They always want pears when they're green," agreed Edna.

"The hassle is up in the top ten," Cathy observed wryly, noting that she dislikes trying to juggle everything around in the store.

What advice would the women offer to anyone thinking of opening a produce market?

(Turn to Page B19)

Cathy and Sam Styer put peaches into 2-quart containers in preparation for opening the store.



Tom and Daisy Styer of Muncy stand outside their market.

Ralph and Edna Styer stand under a tree by produce scales where they have done much of their business for the past 43 years.

Rookie And Veteran Top York 4-H Market Lamb Show

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK — Although only nine years old, 4-H'er Jeff Strausbaugh can easily hold his own in the competition of the sheep showring. With but one year's experience under his belt, the York youngster bested veteran exhibitors to take the 4-H market lamb championship last week at the York Fair.

His winning entry was a purebred Suffolk wether, purchased from Pine Haven Farms, and one of three market lambs raised this season by the young 4-H'er.

Finishing in the reserve champion placing was Melissa Trostle, Red Lion, R2, who wrapped up her 4-H career by repeating her reserve market lamb win of 1985. She then returned to the ring with a well-matched set of lambs to snag the championship of the pairs class. Melissa, 19, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Trostle.

A pair of purebred Hamps took the reserve pairs trophy for Alicia Strausbaugh, 13. She and her brother Jeff, who won the market lamb class, are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Greg Strausbaugh.

4-H Breeding Sheep

York Fair's breeding sheep competition opened the 4-H shepherd activities on September 5, with winners chosen in five separate breed categories.

A sister-brother duo wrapped up all the top ribbons in the Dorset classes. Alicia Strausbaugh exhibited both the champion ram and champion ewe, finishing over her brother, Jeff, who claimed both reserve ram and ewe placings.

Hampshire honors was a trade-off between Byron Waggoner and Melissa Trostle. Waggoner triumphed with a championship in the ram classes, and a reserve ewe win, while Trostle took the ewe championship and the ram class reserve placing.

There was no contest for the top spots in Southdown runoffs, with Melissa Trostle snagging champion and reserve for both the ewe and ram placings.

Suffolk competition was spread among four top finishers. Champion ram was exhibited by Sonja Shearer, with Holly Crisamore in the reserve ram placing. John Eaton's ewe entry got the judge's nod for champion, over reserve winner Michelle Leicht.

Natural colored sheep honors split between Jennifer Jefferis, who took the ram champion and reserve rosettes, and Joseph Caudill, exhibiting the top two ewe winners.

Special Sheep Events

While conformation and weight help determine the class placings of animals entered in the York Fair's 4-H sheep categories, it is the exhibitors themselves who shine in several special showring competitions.

Wrapping up an illustrious 4-H career, Red Lion 4-H'er Melissa Trostle was named grand champion of the Shepherd Class, won top showmanship and reserve fitting honors and capped off the day with a first place win in the senior division of the Lead Line.

Champion of the fitting competition was John Eaton, Windsor. Reserve champion of the Shepherd Class was Jessiah Dietz, and reserve showmanship winner was Joseph Caudill.

Alicia Strausbaugh was chosen winner of the blocking and grooming competition, over reserve winner Joseph Caudill.

In the Lead Line competition, entrants must dress in at least one garment of wool and parade a groomed and trained sheep. Senior division winner Melissa Trostle topped Jennifer Hoke in second place, and Holly Chrisamore, third. Alicia Strausbaugh was intermediate division winner, over Amy Dutrey, second, and Michelle Leicht, third. In the junior division, Carly Kelly was named first place winner, with Amy Shaffer, second, and Jessiah Dietz, third.

Mike Sigler was chosen winner of the Funniest category in the popular Decorator classes, in which entrants costume themselves and their sheep. Jodi Dutrey was second, and Sonja Shearer was third. Most Unusual award went to Jessiah Dietz, over Michelle Leicht, second, and Angie Shaffer, third. Carley Keely was first, and Amy Shaffer, second, in the Most Attractive division.

Other 4-H breeding sheep winners included Jeff Strausbaugh and Melissa Trostle.

Breed winners in 4-H classes included Alicia Strausbaugh, Dorset; and John Eaton, Suffolk.

Dorset 'Family' Sweeps Supreme Sheep Competition

BY JACK HUBLEY

YORK — Mike Koehler was one pleased shepherd when his Dorset ram, "Jackpot," lived up to his name by defeating 12 other breeds for supreme champion honors in the York Fair's open breeding sheep show on Monday. Likewise, Jackpot should have been proud when his daughter, a late February lamb owned by Lee and Louise Wagner, took the supreme champion ewe title.

Koehler, a television repairman from Schnecksville, raises sheep as a sideline, and does it well it enough to come away with some impressive honors. "It keeps me out of trouble," Koehler quipped following Monday night's event.

Jackpot, himself, has had no problem staying out of trouble during the two years that Koehler has owned him. Earlier this year the stylish Dorset ram was named champion at the Ohio State Fair against a field of more than 70 purebred rams. The ram was bred by Morehead Dorsets of Illinois.

Show judge Don Kniffen, Rutgers University's extension livestock specialist, proved that good looks often run in the family by selecting Jackpot's daughter for supreme ewe honors. "I didn't realize he was the sire at the time," Kniffen said, adding that the Wagner entry was a "very correct and stylish ewe."

Although the ewe only placed third in her class last week at the Allentown Fair, Lee Wagner was confident that she was a winner. "I thought she had it in her all along," Wagner said. "She was just right for this one. She was well rested."

The ewe was "just right" enough, in fact, to defeat her mother in the York event. This latter ewe was sired by the York Fair's 1985 supreme champion ram and placed first in the yearling ewe class on Monday.

The Wagners farm about 1500 acres and raise 30 Dorset ewes on their farm near Easton.

Exhibitors of champions and reserves in the breeding sheep show are listed below.

Styer Family

Their first observation was that it was a very competitive business. According to Daisy, since they opened their market 11 years ago, the number of places selling produce nearby has increased as much as 100 percent.

"Beware, it's not peaches and cream," Daisy cautioned.

"It's not as easy as it looks," Cathy remarked, "If you don't want to give 250 percent, don't do it."

A current trend in the produce business, the women noted, is that people now want everything picked.

"They will pay $15 for picked beans when the price to pick your own is $5 per bushel," Daisy remarked, adding that it was the same for strawberries. Cathy attributed the trend to more working women.

They also see more people from both ends of the economic spectrum. More of their customers are paying with food stamps and more are driving Cadillacs to purchase fresh produce, the women said.

A phenomenon Cathy found peculiar was that, "People buy flowers before food. They'll complain about paying 90 cents a dozen for eggs and then they buy flowers."

All agreed that few customers know a quart from a gallon or a gallon from a bushel.

"You'd just be amazed at how much of that there is," exclaimed Edna.

In the off-season from late fall to early spring, the women say they find time to pursue hobbies and interests. Daisy recently hosted an IFYE student from Japan and helps with a local 4-H club.

Cathy is a leader of the Covered Bridge 4-H Club, a member of the Development Council for 4-H in Northumberland County, and a representative to the 4-H Regional Redevelopment Committee. She and Sam attend various vegetable grower and marketing conferences during the winter.

Winter is a time, Edna says, when she sews and when she catches up on her mending.

None of the Styer women set out to marry a farmer, but if Ralph and Edna's long-lived marriage is any indication, a side benefit of produce farming could be marital bliss.

Fashion Show

Another hit with the audience was a christening dress modeled by a sleeping Lauren Elizabeth Hecht.

On her own for just a year and half, Denise said she was delighted with the response to the fashion show. "I was really pleased with it and I learned a few things to remember for the next time. The setting was so pretty and I thank Marian and Kathy for that."

Denise enjoys the challenge of creating a new garment for each client and the pleasure that her clients get from owning a custom designed garment.

Flowers were provided by Kathy VanOrmer and hair and makeup was done by Wendy Herman of Aaron's Studio, Lancaster. Missy Brubaker, Mount Joy, provided violin selections throughout lunch

Maryland Cooks Compete in Dairy-licious Recipe Contest

TIMONIUM, Md. – Over Labor Day weekend six Maryland cooks of various ages and backgrounds came together at the Maryland State Fair to compete in the finals of the Maryland Dairy-licious Recipe Contest. This first-ever contest, sponsored by Maryland dairy farmers, gave state residents a chance to express their culinary abilities while showcasing the versatility of dairy products produced in Maryland.

Three finalists in the youth division and three finalists in the adult division presented their prepared recipe entries to a panel of three judges for the selection of the grand prize winner in each division. Blending milk and vanilla, sharp Cheddars and lump crab meat, sour cream and orange marmalade, the contestants whipped up dishes to tempt any judge.

During the preliminary round of judging, one finalist had been selected from each of the three contest categories, beverage, entree, and dessert. These three finalists competed with one another for the grand prize in their division.

Winning the grand prize, a $250 U.S. Savings Bond, in the youth division was Sabrina Cellarosi, for her entry, "Sabrina's Ricotta Cheesecake." The cake is an elegant and unusual variation from traditional cheesecakes. Sabrina's recipe alternates layers of angel food cake with an almond flavored cheese filling for a deliciously light dessert.

In the adult division Cameron Davis won the grand prize, a GE microwave oven, for his entry, "Cam's Crab and Cheese Quickie Quiche." Starting with the raw ingredients, this dish is ready to serve hot out of the oven in one hour. Combining sharp Cheddar and cream cheese, farm fresh milk and eggs, broccoli, and Maryland blue crab meat, Cam's Quiche has a flavored regional appeal.

Here, with the permission of the contest sponsors, are the two winning recipe entries.

Cam's Crab and Cheese Quickie Quiche

8 ounces shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
3 ounces cream cheese, cubed
1 cup milk
3 eggs
2 ounces chopped pimentos, drained (optional)
⅔ cup steamed broccoli
8 ounces Maryland blue lump crab meat
¾ cup buttermilk baking mix
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg

Preheat oven to 400°F. Grease a 9x1¼-inch pie plate. Mix cheese, broccoli, crab meat and pimentos in pie plate. Lay cubed cream cheese on crab mixture. Beat milk, eggs, and buttermilk baking mix in blender for 15 seconds on high. Pour into pie plate. Bake 30 to 35 mintues or until knife inserted into center is clean when removed. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Sabrina's Ricotta Cheesecake

2 round angel food cakes, from store
2 pounds ricotta cheese
2 cups whipping cream
1 cup confectioners sugar
2 teaspoons almond extract
¼ cup sliced almonds

For cheese filling, whip 1 cup of whipping cream. In another bowl combine ricotta cheese, confectioner's sugar and almond extract, fold in whipped cream to these ingredients.

Cut angel food cakes into thin slices, approximately ¼ inch thickness. Line a large mixing bowl with a layer of the sliced cake. Add a layer of the cheese filling, a little thicker than the cake layer. Continue alternating cake slices and cheese filling, ending with a layer of the sliced cake. Cover the bowl with waxed paper and chill overnight.

Before serving, invert the mixing bowl on a serving platter. Whip the remaining 1 cup of cream and ice the cake with it. Sprinkle the sliced almonds over the cake for a flavorful garnish. Makes approximately 20 servings.

Grand prize winner in the adult division of the Maryland Dairy-licious Recipe Contest was Cameron Davis of Union Bridge. His entry, "Cam's Crab and Cheese Quickie Quiche," won him the grand prize, a GE microwave oven.

You need a truck body and hoist that work as hard as you.

Your favorite truck dealer and the local Omaha Standard distributor can help with the work. Omaha Standard's name on a truck body plus hoist means good looking, rugged equipment that doesn't wear out. You'll need to replace the truck before you'll need to replace the Omaha Standard body or hoist. That's quality working for you, year after year. When it's time to purchase a combination grain and livestock body, a stakeless steel grain body, all aluminum grain body, a scissor or stabilized Olympic telescopic hoist, Omaha Standard has the right equipment for the job, the load and the road. It's a fact — your Omaha Standard distributor is the single source for truck bodies and hoists

OH! OH!

The cows are falling.
How do you know?
Farmer Brown said so.

How do you know Farmer Brown?
I saw it with my eyes.
I heard it with my ears.
And there is less milk in the pail.

Let's go ask the wise old owl.
The owl thought for a moment.
"Call the Scabbler Man", he said.
"He can fix the barn for you, and You'll find more milk in the pail!"

Because every farm is different, we develop different alfalfa varieties.

Your farm is different from that of your neighbor; different soil types, perhaps, or different disease and insect problems. And that may be the best reason yet for using Pioneer® brand alfalfa in your individual alfalfa management program.

Thanks to our large and continuing alfalfa research effort, you have a number of different varieties to choose from. There's one that will fit your farm better than any other variety you can buy; and that's the one you should be planting to maximize your long-term alfalfa yields.

Which one? Well, your Pioneer sales representative will be glad to match one of these varieties to your farm conditions and help you start getting more alfalfa from every field on your farm. So give him a call. He's right down the road.

526

One of the most winterhardy varieties on the market. It features outstanding resistance to Bacterial Wilt, good resistance to Fusarium Wilt and produces impressive yields. The first cutting is a bit later than with 531 or 532.

531

Tolerates Anthracnose infestations and fights off Fusarium and Bacterial Wilt. First cutting is early, and the fine stemmed, leafy plants bounce back fast after harvest.

NEW 5432

With excellent resistance to Verticillium Wilt and Phytophthora Root Rot, 5432 delivers extra tonnage for hay or silage. It has fast regrowth, early spring recovery along with very good winterhardiness and excellent seedling vigor.

GEC Offers Financial Assistance For Energy Projects

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Governor's Energy Council is offering approximately $115,000 in grants to Pennsylvania farms, businesses, industries and institutions which are interested in developing energy projects which use wood, agricultural residues, animal wastes, energy crops, or similar biomass. There are restrictions on the types of technology eligible for this program other than the requirement that the systems must use biomass to produce usable energy.

There will be two categories of grants available. The first category will be grants for studies to examine the technical and economic feasibility of a proposed biomass energy system. The GEC will pay for 50 percent of the cost of such studies, up to a maximum grant of $10,000. The GEC expects that these grants will be most useful to firms needing detailed information about the feasibility of large biomass energy projects.

The second category of assistance will be grants for project development costs incurred in the actual design, licensing, and construction of biomass energy projects. Because of restrictions on the use of the program funds, the GEC cannot provide assistance for wood energy equipment, but it can provide assistance for the various engineering, legal and related project development costs. The GFC will pay from 50 percent to 100 percent of the eligible project development costs (depending on the amount of the costs), up to a maximum grant of $15,000. These grants are available to reimburse applicants for project development costs which will be incurred between January 9, 1987 and June 15, 1987.

All grants will be awarded on a competitive basis. Anyone interested in this program should contact Teresa Peters, the secretary for the GEC's renewable energy office, and request a copy of the Biomass Energy Assistance Program application. Her telephone number is (717) 783-9981, and her mailing address is Governor's Energy Council, P.O. Box 8010, Harrisburg, PA 17105.

Grant applications are due at the GEC on November 10, 1986.

USDA Study Lists Best Meat Buys

WASHINGTON — Ground beef, beef liver, turkey, chicken, ground chuck, and pork shoulder were found to be the best meat buys in a recent study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The economy of a cut depends on the amount of cooked lean meat or the number of servings it provides, as well as its price per pound, according to Suzanne Harris, deputy assistant secretary for Food and Consumer Services. "Relatively high-priced meat cuts with little or no waste may be more economical than low-prices cuts with a great deal of bone, gristle, or fat," she said.

Costs in this study, which included meat alternates as well as selected types and cuts of meat, poultry, and fish, were estimated using nationwide priced collected in June 1986 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor.

The study also compared the costs of 20 grams of proetin – about one-third of the recommended allowance for a man – from selected meats and alternates. Some meat alternates — such as peanut butter and eggs — are as good or better buys than less expensive cuts of meat. However, some processed meat products, such as frankfurters and bologna, were found to cost more as sources of protein than pork roasts and some beef roasts.

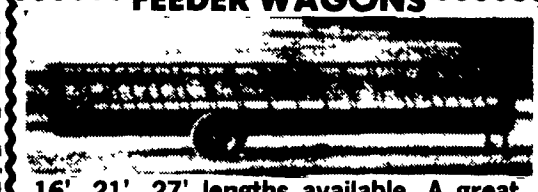
FEEDER WAGONS



16', 21', 27' lengths available. A great feature for feeding cattle in meadows or in feed lots. Can be used for feeding round bales.

If old gas tanks are used for feeder wagon bottoms, they should be sand blasted. If not, the gas and rust may result in sick cattle or even death. Be safe and buy from us as ours are sand blasted before being painted.

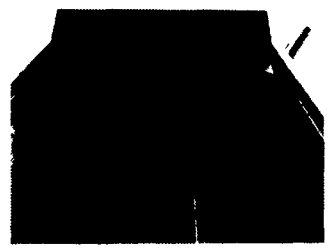
The One Spreader For A Two-Spreader Farm

Manure from confinement housing can be quickly and easily loaded and delivered to your spreader with a versatile Gehl skid loader The heaviest loads are no problem with a 300 Series manure spreader It's built with heavy duty chain drive and rugged construction throughout Your first glance will tell you the 300 is unlike any spreader you've ever seen

Handles All Kinds Of Manure-Liquid, Semi-Solid, Pen Packed, Even Frozen



The big difference: a square auger

The heavy-duty square-tube auger simply works better than conventional round augers
That's because its patented configuration sets up a unique "pulse action" to thoroughly break up and blend manure and lessen the chance of wrapping
The auger's paddles — specially formed for added strength against tough, packed loads — are set at the precise pitch to maintain the proper flow of manure to the discharge expeller

THE HIGHEST QUALITY AT THE BEST PRICE

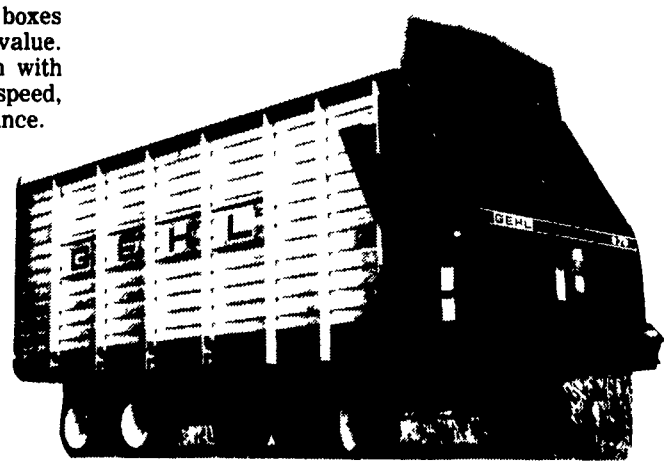
The Gehl tradition of building the best forage boxes is well known. Gehl forage boxes traditionally maintain a high resale value. The Model 970 continues the tradition with added features that increase unloading speed, capacity, strength and ease of maintenance.

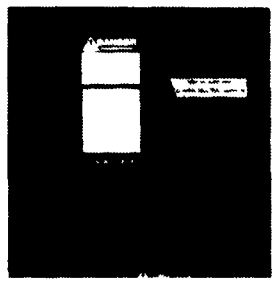
The first thing you'll notice about the 970 is the steel sides. They're made from 20 gauge GEHLSTEEL. GEHLSTEEL is superior to hot-dipped galvanized, Galvalume™, electrolytic galvanized and aluminized steels.

It has far better corrosion resistance and a longer life expectancy. Even if scratched, there is little chance that rust will appear.

Available in 14-, 16- and 18-foot lengths, the 970 is backed by a 10-year warranty on the sides, endgate, stakes and platform.

Study the Model 970 and see all the features that make it the best performing forage box on the market. Then study the new low price. You'll agree that the Gehl 970 is the best forage box value available today.





10-Year Warranty
On sides, endgate, stakes, platform and roof

All new drive system. The two-speed drive system features #50 roller chain for added strength and durability. The apron chain speed is easily controlled by the handy lever located on the front of the box.

A TRENCHING MACHINE YOU CAN REALLY ENJOY!

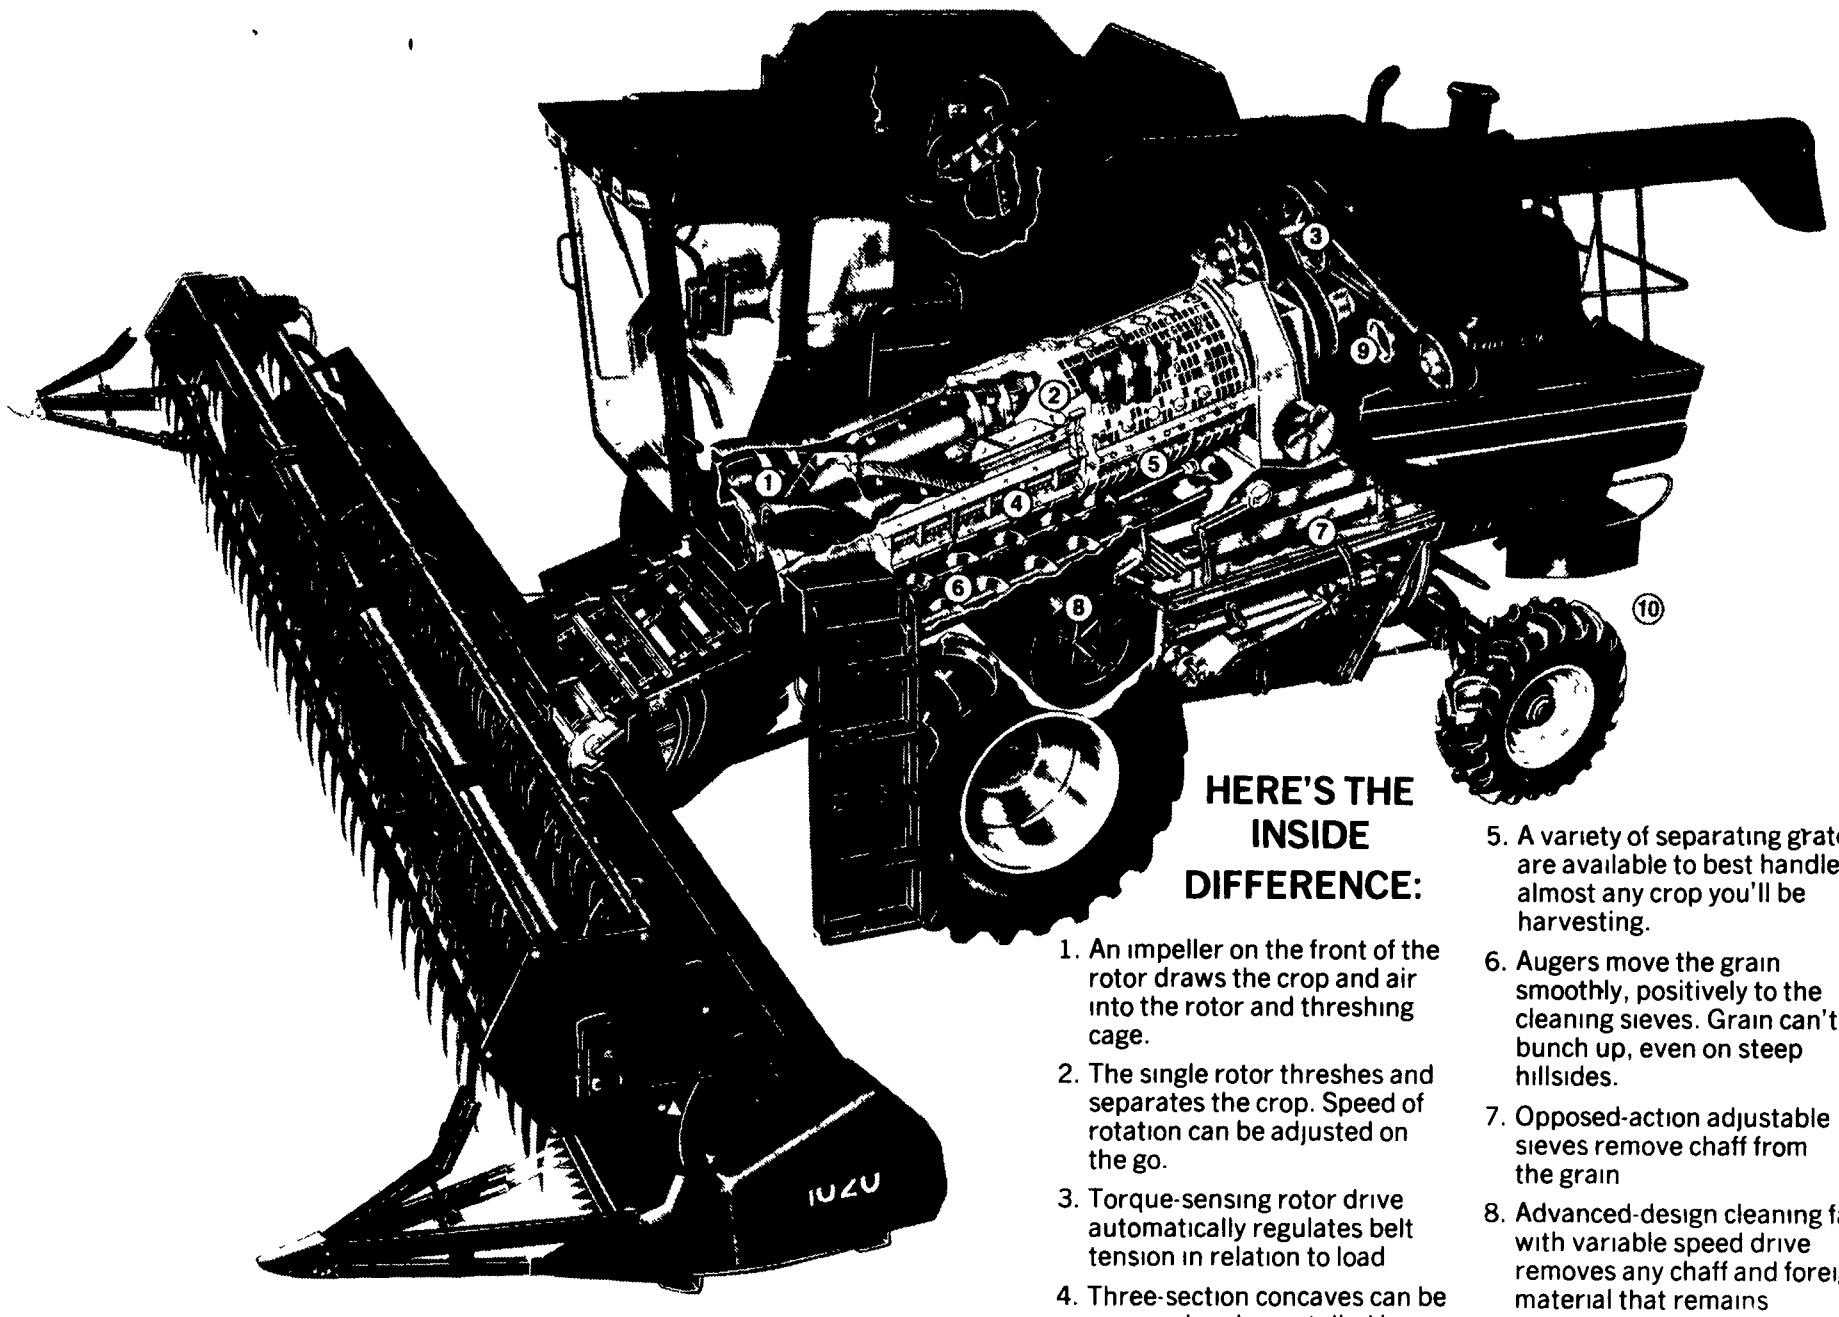
case IH Axial-Flow Combine

DIFFERENT and BETTER from the inside out



HERE'S THE INSIDE DIFFERENCE:

1. An impeller on the front of the rotor draws the crop and air into the rotor and threshing cage.
2. The single rotor threshes and separates the crop. Speed of rotation can be adjusted on the go.
3. Torque-sensing rotor drive automatically regulates belt tension in relation to load
4. Three-section concaves can be removed and reinstalled by one man in less than 30 minutes. Small-wire and large-wire concaves are available to match different crops. Clearance is easily adjusted with a ratchet handle.
5. A variety of separating grates are available to best handle almost any crop you'll be harvesting.
6. Augers move the grain smoothly, positively to the cleaning sieves. Grain can't bunch up, even on steep hillsides.
7. Opposed-action adjustable sieves remove chaff from the grain
8. Advanced-design cleaning fan with variable speed drive removes any chaff and foreign material that remains
9. Positive discharge beater propels straw rearward to the straw spreaders. (Straw chopper is optional.)
10. Wide spread twin-rotor straw spreaders distribute discharge material uniformly and can be removed in seconds for windrowing material.

Why Axial-Flow is superior. On conventional combines, the grain passes between the cylinder and concave only once. Consequently, the threshing action is severe. But with Axial-Flow, grain is threshed several times — repeatedly, but gently — as it spirals around the single, large diameter rotor and passes through the threshing cage. Multiple threshing plus gentle threshing results in less cracked grain, less dockage at the elevator and top price for every bushel.

Centrifugal force replaces straw walkers. Axial-Flow eliminates the need for straw walkers — a substantial source of grain loss with conventional combines. Consequently, the more grain you grow, the more grain you'll save with the more efficient Axial-Flow system.

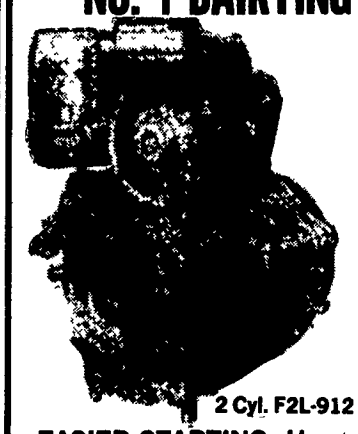
NO. 1 DAIRYING DIESEL



2 Cyl. F2L-912

KHD DEUTZ

Since 1968 F2L-912 diesels have earned the reputation as the most reliable diesel. Don't settle for less.

EASIER STARTING: Heavy flywheel provides easy starting. No electric heater plugs.

QUIETER: Runs quieter than most water cooled diesels. Very quiet exhaust.

New Rating
26.5 HP @ 1800 RPM
20.0 HP @ 1500 RPM

Fewer repair parts than comparable three-cylinder diesels - cheaper to overhaul. It has direct injection, lube oil cooling and oil cooled pistons. This engine has proven to survive the extreme heat of a heavy load in a small engine house better than any other engine.

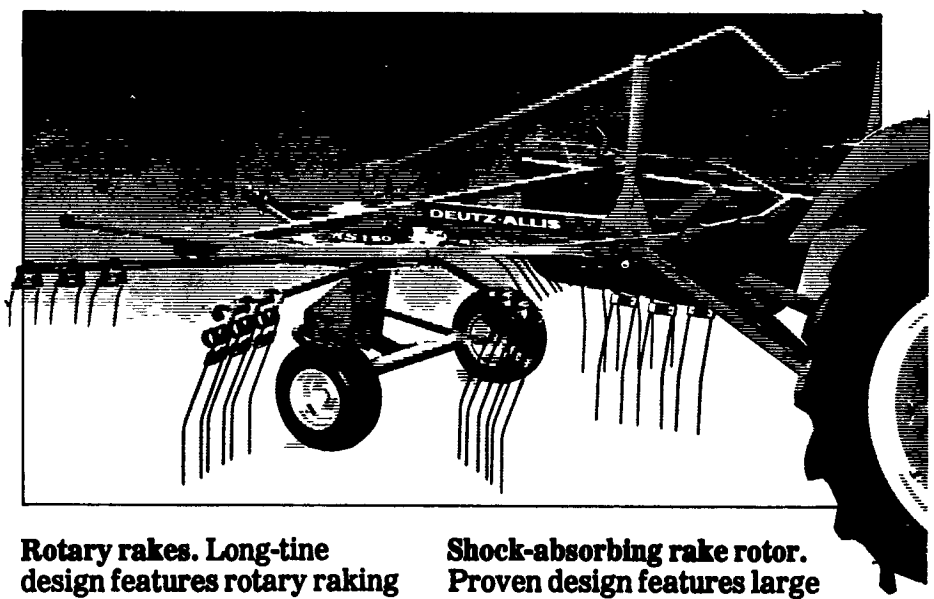
See What Sets Us Apart



Rotary rakes. Long-tine design features rotary raking action that minimizes crop movement and leaf loss. No twisting or roping. Produces loose, fluffy windrows for fast drying.

Shock-absorbing rake rotor. Proven design features large rollers that follow a cam track. Absorbs shock loads as tine arms lower to pick up material, move it to the side, then raise up and back to pass over the windrow.

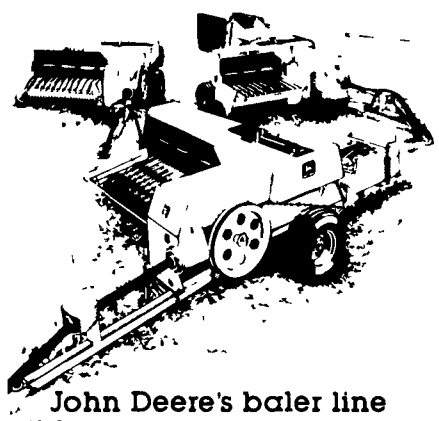
SQUARER BALES



John Deere's baler line builds squarer, stackable bales

To build solid, square-cornered bales consistently, you need consistent control of the hay And John Deere's 327, 337 and 347 Balers give that control from the moment hay touches the pickup

A floating tapered auger and adjustable feeder forks take over to keep material flowing evenly The gear-driven knotter puts the finishing touch on these solid, stackable bales from John Deere PROTEK™ The New Technology In Protein Efficiency. It's Working!

Levi S. Beiler

Levi S. Beiler, of Paradise, Pa., is very satisfied with his Protek program. He started with ear corn and Protek in November of 1984 but kept the same roughage program which consists of hay and corn silage. "I've always had confidence in Master Mix, and when Charlie Lichty, my salesman, suggested I try Protek, I was willing to feed it" Levi claims. Since being on Protek, Levi's Rolling Herd Average has increased 1250 lbs. of milk and 45 lbs. of fat.

Levi attributes much of his success to the 1890 High Energy top-dress pellet. "The pellets are making my peaks higher and the cows are holding production longer. The cows really take to the 1890's" Levi says.

Testimonial of Aynestead Farms

Phil and Wayne Pierson, of Aynestead Farms in Clayton, Delaware, are very pleased with the performance of their herd after switching from a 20% pellet to Master Mix's Protek 1790's. Here's what they have to say about Protek:

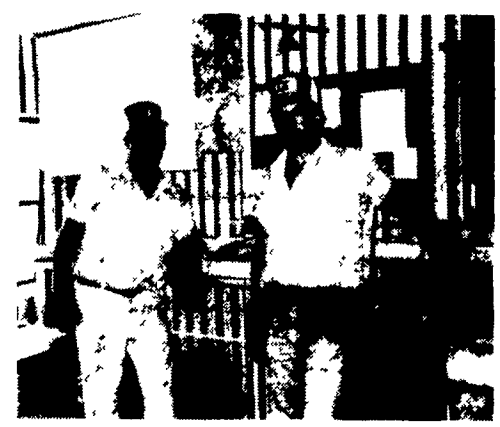
"Our roughage program stayed the same and the pounds of pellets we fed stayed the same. The only thing we did different was to lower the protein of our pellet from a 20% to a Protek 17%, and the milk came up."

"In December of 1984, Gene Garrett, the salesman from Spencer's Milling Service in Clayton, Delaware, suggested we try Protek 1790's from Master Mix. Our Rolling Herd Average was 17,932 lbs. After being on Protek for only 18 months, our herd average is up to 20,060 lbs."

Aynestead Farms was high herd in milk for the state of Delaware in 1985.

Eli and Jacob Blank

Eli and Jacob Blank, of Gap, Pa., switched their 40 head of Holsteins from a cob chop and 38% mix to a cob chop and Protek mix in November of 1984. Their roughage program of hay and corn silage remained the same. Here are their comments on the Protek program: "We were looking for a better feeding program that would give us good results and yet be less costly than what we were currently on. When Protek was introduced, we went on it right away and have seen excellent results. We got an increase in milk and butterfat held its own. The cow's peaks generally remained the same, but they hold their production longer while maintaining good condition and health. We feel the 1890 High Energy top-dress pellets are the contributing factor to this. Our Rolling Herd Average has gone from 17,239 lbs. to milk and 622 lbs. of fat in November of 1984, to 18,191 lbs. of milk and 635 lbs. of fat currently. Since being on the Protek program, we have seen better herd health and reproduction. Our calving interval went from 12.7 months with 2 services to 12 months and 1.4 services. We have been on Protek for over a year. We like it and plan on feeding it for a long time."



Master Mix® CENTRAL SOYA

More to Gain.™

Carl and Wayne Stafford

Carl and Wayne Stafford, of North East, Md., say the following about their Protek program: "We began with Protek in February of 1985 with a Rolling Herd Average of 14,763 lbs. of milk and 539 lbs. of fat. We are now up to 17,196 lbs. of milk and 605 lbs. of fat. On the Protek program we greatly reduced the protein in our grain mix and the feed cost really came down. Before going to Protek, we were adding several pacs to our feed to try and boost production. Now, on Protek, we aren't adding any pacs and we are very pleased with the milk increase." Carl and Wayne milk 80 Holsteins. They feed 1890 High Energy pellets in the parlor, hay, haylage and corn silage. A Protek concentrate and grain mix is then fed to the cows through their computer feeder. The Staffords get their feed from Master Mix dealer Hilaman Milling, Inc.

Jim and Daryl Bowman

Jim and Daryl Bowman of Ronks, Pa., started feeding a 12½% ear corn and Protek feed in November of 1984. "Our roughage program of baled hay, haylage and corn silage remained more constant than when we were on an ear corn and 38% mix. For example we had a cow peak at 125 lbs. in July!" Jim exclaimed. "Our feed cost is the same and our Rolling Herd Average has gone from 17,008 lbs. of milk with 637 lbs. of fat to 18,345 lbs. of milk with 660 lbs. of fat. We're looking for 19,000 lbs. of milk this fall" Jim stated.

Ivan and Dave Bowman

Ivan and Dave Bowman, of Ronks, Pa., switched from a 38% to Protek in December of 1984. They comment: "Milk production is up, but our feed cost is less than when we were on the 38%. Our roughage program is the same, which is hay, haylage, and corn silage. Our pounds of feed are the same. But since being on a 12% Protek feed, our Rolling Herd Average has gone from 15,949 lbs. of milk and 559 lbs. of fat to 17,288 lbs. of milk and 629 lbs. of fat. The 1890 High Energy pellets really help the cows to hold their peak and keep them in excellent condition."

Beef Promotion Check-Off To Begin Oct. 1

HARRISBURG — The one-dollar per head check-off assessment, as prescribed by federal law, under the 1985 Beef Promotion and Research Act, will begin October 1, 1986, according to Paul Heffner, chairman of the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

"Assessments must be sent to the PA Beef Council, recently named the 'Qualified State Beef Council' by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Ling," Heffner explained. "Assessments must be sent by the 'collecting person,' who is generally defined as the person who pays the producer for cattle purchased. Collecting persons are: auctions, packers, processors, dealers, order buyers, and others," he said.

The PA Beef Council is assisting these persons and agencies to develop a uniform accounting record which meets the Federal Order. All records of sales must be maintained.

The state council has scheduled 10 meetings across the state to discuss the assessment procedures, as required by law, including state-of-origin cattle identification, 10-day exemption for dealers, producer refund requests and other information.

Copies of assessment procedures, uniform collection forms and other information helpful to "collecting persons" will be distributed at these meetings.

Meetings will be held at county extension offices at 7 p.m. beginning September 15.

"We tried to avoid market nights so market representatives and dealers could attend without conflict," said Heffner, "but this wasn't always possible. We hope most, if not all, people directly responsible under this new law will attend and ask questions," he added.

The dollar per head assessment program will help the beef industry halt the steady decline of beef consumption and make beef production once again profitable for all segments of the beef industry. "This can be done," Heffner said, "by using proven, effective marketing tools developed by the Beef Industry Council, based in Chicago, and the 38 state Beef Councils." Heffner explained that the promotion programs will be controlled nationally by a new "Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board" whose members must be beef producers. Representing Pennsylvania's interests on this Board are Paul Espy, beef cattle feeder from Tyrone, Blair County, and John Cope, dairyman from Grantham, Cumberland County.

After 22 months of program operation, cattle producers across the nation will vote through a national referendum on whether to continue the established program.

"We as beef producers have been given the best opportunity ever to compete more equally with others for part of the consumer's food dollar," Heffner said. "The PA Beef Council is dedicated to making this program a success . . . carrying out a coordinated program with the total beef industry's interests, as first priority," he said.

For more information on the PA Beef Council and 1985 Beef Promotion and Research Act, contact Paul Heffner or Bob Coleman, Executive Director, PA Beef Council, 4714 Orchard Street, Harrisburg, PA 17109, 717/545-6000.

Beef Council Reorganizes

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Beef Council, through a revision of by-laws, has reorganized in preparation for new responsibilities assumed through the 1985 Beef Promotion and Research Act.

Newly elected officers include: Chairman Paul Heffner, Gettysburg; Chairman-elect Conrad Grove, Downingtown; Vice-Chairman Ray Grimes, McKnightstown; and Secretary/Treasurer Millie Bunting, Lancaster.

As Chairman-elect, Grove will oversee financial matters while Grimes will advise BPRA promotion, education and research program activities.

Five new directors were appointed to the board. They are: Ella Roush and Tony Noll as packer representatives; James DeGaetano, auction representative; Robert Earle, veal industry representative; and Millie Bunting, general appointee. The Pennsylvania Beef Council Board of Directors consists of 20 persons representing all areas of the beef industry plus three ex-officio members: Dr. Max VanBuskirk, Joan L. Liesau and Dr. Erskine Cash.

Former PA Beef Council treasurer Robert R. Coleman of Harrisburg was appointed to a newly-created position of Executive Director of the state council. Coleman's principal responsibility will be implementation of the BPRA program.

Lowell L. Wilson, of State College, long-time secretary of the PA Beef Council declined to seek re-election but will continue as secretary of the PA Cattlemen's Association.

Paul Espy, a beef cattle feeder from Tyrone and John Cope, a dairyman from Grantham will represent Pennsylvania on the new Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board which will control the national budget for promotion programs for the BPRA.

Under the BPRA, the PA Beef Council became certified as the "Qualified State Beef Council" for Pennsylvania. Through this certification, the state council has agreed to conduct extensive programs for promotion, education and research of beef; collect and distribute the $1-per-head check-off assessments; establish procedures to assure assessments are paid; handle requests for refunds and exemptions.

The PA Beef Council will also be responsible for balancing the accounts for cattle sold in Pennsylvania and keeping adequate records by working closely with auctions, packers, processors, dealers and order buyers in accordance with BPRA and its accompanying Order issued July 18, 1985.

According to Heffner, "The $1-per-head check-off assessment program will start October 1, 1986. Assessments must be sent to the PA Beef Council by the 'collecting person.' The collecting person is defined as the person who pays the producer for the cattle purchased. This includes auctions, packers, processors, dealers and order buyers and others," he explained.

Sensing Poultry Problems

Successful poultry producers are often credited with having a sixth sense for flock management. This may be true but they also rely heavily on their normal senses, especially sight, sound, smell, and touch.

Simple observation will reveal much about the health status of a flock. Disease almost always produces depression and weakness. Affected birds tend to sit and stand rather than move. There may be relaxation of the neck, resulting in the head resting on the shoulders. Other observed traits include drooping of the wings with exposure of the primary feathers and drooping of the tail with loss of upright main tail feathers. Because birds respond to an intruder by a change in activity, the skilled poultry producer remains motionless for several minutes after entering a house. This allows the birds to relax and resume their pattern of undisturbed activity.

Deviation from expected behavior can be seen by observing the number of birds eating and drinking. When the lights first come on the birds actively eat and drink. This activity decreases as the appetite is satisfied. The starting and running of feeders normally stimulates the birds to eat.

The experienced egg producers observe the eggs on the trays in front of the cages before the egg belts are started. Uneven distribution or sections of cages with no eggs is an indicator of problems. Problems can often be detected by observing egg distribution patterns before the problems are spotted by such indicators as feed and/or water consumption.

Observations of the litter or dropping boards can be revealing. Wet litter or droppings can be an indicator of excessive water consumption, high salt levels or leaking waterers. The presence of excess feathers can indicate a partial or light molt. Shell problems can often be spotted by observation of the number of shells and yolks on the dropping boards.

Skilled poultry producers hear things in the poultry house. They note the noise of the chickens. Another indicator of the health status of a flock is the "talking" by the bird. Respiratory rales and snicks are best appraised by listening to the flock when it is sleeping. A good listener can also pick up many equipment problems. Squeaking bearings, rubbing collection belts, dripping cups, binding scrapes and feeders can be detected.

The poultry producer can evaluate the ventilation system by sensing for ammonia. Its pungent odor causes it to easily be detected. Feed problems may be detected by smelling a handful of feed taken from the bin and troughs.

The sense of touch is useful in checking water sanitation, equipment adjustment and egg shell texture. Drinking cups that are not maintained properly accumulate a film of slime organisms on their surface. This can be detected by rubbing with a finger. Shell texture can be checked by touching the surface of an egg with the tip of a finger.

Successful poultry producers are often credited with having a sixth sense for poultry management. In reality this sixth sense is nothing more than a reflection of the skill the producer uses to apply the five senses — sight, sound, smell, touch, and taste — to the management of poultry

Franklin Co. Steer Continues Winning Ways

CHAMBERSBURG — With four shows to his credit, "Benny" has two grand champion and one reserve champion trophies thus far this show season. Owned by Regina Lebo of Greencastle, the Angus-Chianina-Limousin crossbred recently took grand champion honors at the Northeast Regional Chianina Steer Show held in conjunction with the York Fair.

Last month, at a weight of 1185 pounds, the steer was named grand champion at the Franklin County Fair. The daughter of Leon and Judy Lebo, Regina herself did as well in the show, being named champion showman.

Miss Lebo's top beef was purchased from Ollie Bennett at the Piedmont Club Calf Sale held in Frederick, Maryland last October. The steer was bred by Bennett and sired by Nittany Prince.

Curtis Meyers of Greencastle took reserve honors at the Franklin Fair with an Angus-Chianina cross weighing 1155 pounds.

Steve Clapsaddle, Waynesboro, won the lightweight class with an 810-pound Hereford, and also placed first in the fitting competition's intermediate division.

The top steer in the light middleweight class was a 995-pound Angus shown by Lorinda Hawbaker.

Champion in the heavyweight class was a 1310-pound Angus-Charolais cross shown by Holly McLaughtlin of Greencastle. Holly was also the show's champion fitter.

David and Eric Sheiss, Chambersburg, both took first-place honors in fitting and showing in the novice and junior classes, respectively.

Judging the 26-head Franklin Fair show was Don Sunday of York County. The county's 4-H Beef Club Roundup will be held Oct. 11, at the Greencastle Livestock Market.

The Lifetime Roofing

NO RIP OFF!

Reroof directly over existing roof. For installation instructions

ASK THE EXPERTS!

THERE'S NO OTHER ROOFING MATERIAL LIKE IT.

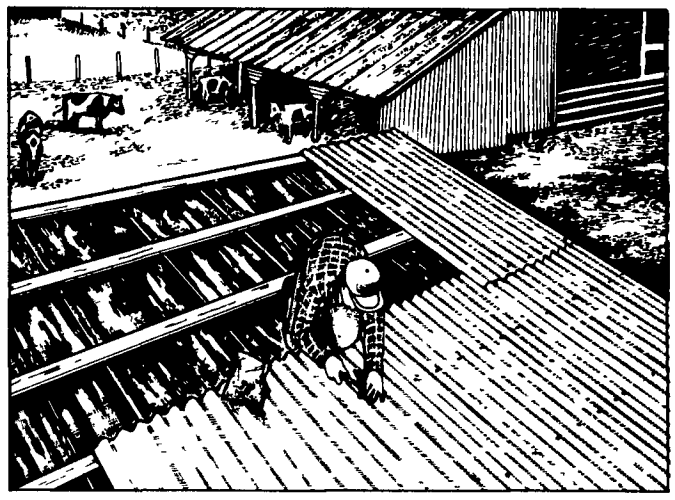
Onduline's very construction makes it different. And makes it a superior roofing and siding material at the same time.

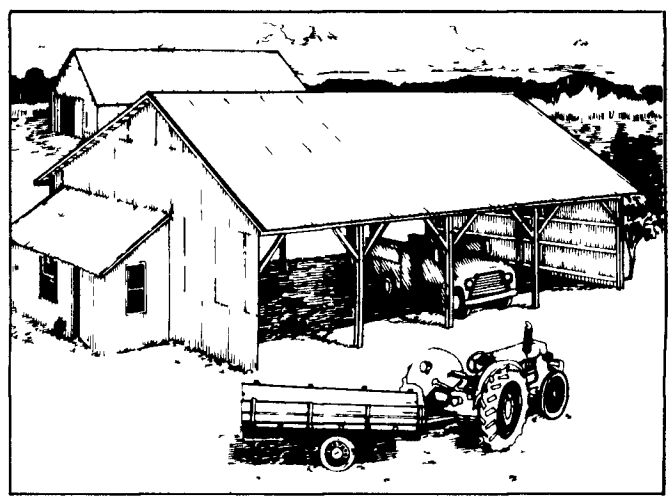
Its corrugated design enables it to be both lightweight and strong.

While its total asphalt impregnation means it outlasts most other roofing. Including metal.

But you don't have to take our word that Onduline is tough. It's met rigid building codes throughout the country.

And it's been in successful use on roofs all over the world for nearly 40 years.





EASY INSTALLATION ISN'T THE ONLY REASON TO USE ONDULINE.

The roof renewed with Onduline will have something it didn't have before.

Dead air space.

This means significantly better insulation because dead air space acts as a barrier to heat and cold transfer.

So in the winter, an Onduline-covered building is likely to be warmer. And in summer, cooler.

Of course, what makes Onduline such a good reroofing material is how long it lasts.

And that's the real reason why, above all, Onduline is a better roofing.

Birds Build Better Beef

Billy and Sandy Long Found A Ready Market For Their Dehydrated Poultry Waste In The Cattle Business

BY JULIE GOCHENOUR
Virginia Correspondent

HARRISONBURG, Va. — Whoever said you can't get too much of a good thing wasn't talking about poultry manure. The nitrogen rich by-product of the poultry industry usually accumulates faster than most producers can figure out what to do with it, and in amounts larger than they can use themselves.

But Billy and Sandy Long of Quicksburg, Virginia, have come up with their own solution to the mounting problem of excess poultry manure — cattle feed. They take raw manure from their family's 40-plus chicken and turkey houses, dehydrate it, and sell the nutritional end-product as a high protein cattle feed.

Drying poultry litter is not a new concept, the Longs explain. Many poultry producers have tried to dry their manure and market it as a fertilizer, often with little success, Billy notes. However, the potential of dried litter for cattle feed has been largely overlooked by both poultry producers and cattlemen alike, Long says.

According to Dr. H. John Gerken, Jr., extension specialist in animal science at VPI, Virginia's land grant university, when broiler litter is properly included in nutritionally balanced rations, it is more valuable as livestock feed than as fertilizer. Yet beef specialist Dr. Ike Eller admits that, "Broiler litter in areas where it is available is still probably the best and most under utilized feedstuff."

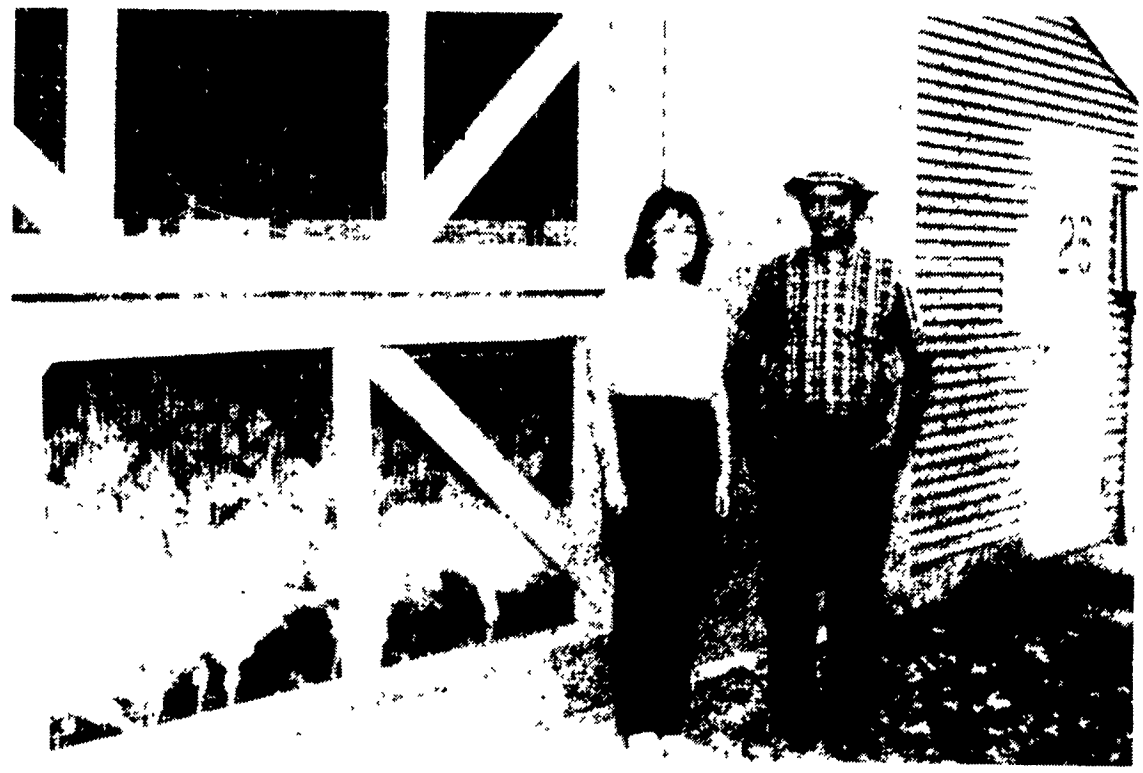
The reason, Billy Long believes, is because many beef cattlemen are reluctant to handle or feed the raw product. Before raw manure can be utilized in cattle rations, it must be processed for feeding by either deep stacking, ensiling alone or by ensiling with corn forage. In either case, combining the litter with corn silage or mixing it with other rations is a process many beef producers would rather avoid.

The Long's dehydrated version of poultry litter, called Valley Grow, eliminates this and other problems associated with unprocessed manure. Unlike the raw product, dried poultry waste is pleasant and easy to use and can be hauled or shipped like any feed product. Furthermore, once the manure is in a more acceptable form, beef farmers find the nutritional content of the cattlefeed hard to resist.

"Valley Grow has a TDN (total digestible nutrients) content of at least 40 percent, with a guaranteed 23 percent minimum protein — although that usually runs closer to 30 percent protein," Sandy Long explains, noting this is much higher than either corn or alfalfa hay. The dried poultry waste she and her husband market also contains phosphorus, calcium, magnesium, iron and manganese, important micro-nutrients not always found in other feeds, she adds.

The feed itself is a dry, rich brown product that' doesn't resemble raw manure in any way, shape, or form . . . including odor. Poultry manure from the farm is hauled to their small dehydrating plant just north of Harrisonburg and deep stacked until it's used. Then the Long's dry it down to a 10 percent moisture content using an unique dehydrating process.

According to Billy Long, the raw product is first run through a hammer mill and is then elevated into a one-of-a-kind vacuum dryer where it is dried at 800°F. for a few seconds. From there it goes into a cooler and into another hammermill with a one-quarter inch screen to make a mash product. If the product is to be pelletized, it goes on to a 150-horsepower pellet mill specially adapted for the purpose. The mash and pellets are then sold bagged or in bulk to cattlemen.



Sandy and Billy Long with some of the "manufacturers" of their Valley Grow cattle feed.

The mash and pellets look like any other commercial feed product and mix easily with other rations. Most producers simply use Valley Grow as a top dressing on their ensilage, Sandy reports. "Although most cattle take to it with their usual enthusiastic appetites, we do suggest that producers gradually add the cattle feed to their rations to accustom the animals to the dehydrated litter," she adds, noting the dried litter can be fed just like the raw product.

"Dry, nursing and pregnant cows can be fed a ratio of 70 percent Valley Grow and 30 percent silage, ground corn, haylage, milo and that sort of thing with pregnant cows receiving 13 to 15 pounds and dry and nursing cows 15 to 20 pounds. Growing calves should get 6 to 8 pounds of a 50 percent ratio and finishing calves 40 percent Valley Grow, 60 percent roughage plus molasses and premix," Long explains. These are the standard guidelines issued by VPI for feeding poultry manure, she adds.

Both husband and wife feel there are other advantages with their dried poultry waste product that cattlemen like. The dehydrated Valley Grow is a stable product that can be stored in a dry place up to five years with no appreciable loss in quality or nutritional value. The vacuum drying process also kills harmful organisms and removes foreign objects such as nails or glass that may have been in the raw product.

Economics also make his Valley Grow attractive to beef producers, Billy emphasizes. A 10 percent moisture content means producers are getting more food value per weight unit and don't have to worry about spoilage either. He also points out that Valley Grow has stayed the same price since 1983, and, since it is immune to market fluctuations, can make farm budgets more accurate.

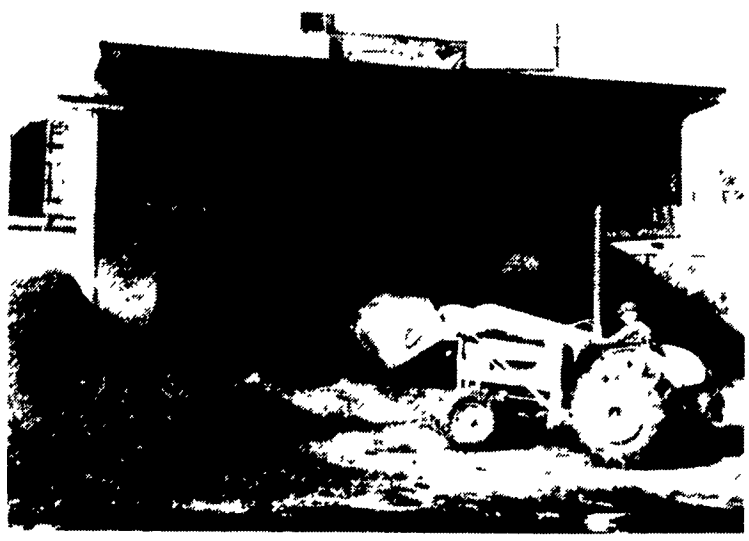
Poultry waste is cheaper per protein unit than corn, soybeans or alfalfa and can stretch a farmer's feed supply while upgrading his rations, the poultryman says. It also frees crops for market instead of tying them up as livestock rations if demand is high for hay or other commodities, and, in a drought year such as this, can supplement scant, poor quality livestock feed.

The Longs sell about 300 tons of their dehydrated poultry waste a year direct from their plant, Virginia Dehydrating, in Harrisonburg. The operation is a family corporation once owned by Franwood Farms, another Long family enterprise centered around poultry. In fact, Billy grew up in the poultry business and never really considered doing anything else. By the age of 11 he was raising guineas and chickens and after a year of college came back to the family farm.

Billy and Sandy ran a breeder operation for six years in South Carolina before returning to the Shenandoah Valley for good. Ten years ago he and his brothers bought Virginia Dehydrating as an outlet for poultry manure and operated it independently from Franwood Farms. Eventually it became Billy's project and 2½ years ago, he and Sandy purchased the business for themselves.

Both Longs believe the potential of poultry litter for cattle feed is excellent and can offer a real solution to both economic pressures on beef and growing stockpiles of manure. It may take hard work, education and promotion, Billy admits, but these are things which poultry producers have addressed in the past and can do so again. Beef cattlemen have much they could gain from poultrymen, he hints — including some first-class cattle rations.

Sandy Long displays some of the finished product, which bears little resemblance to manure. TDN runs at least 40 percent, and protein content is normally 23 to 30 percent.



Junior Bazzle loads raw poultry manure into a hammer mill before it is vacuum dried at 800 degrees, then cooled. Product is then pelletized or sold as mash.

Ag Engineers Cite Case IH

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. – The CASE IH Company of Racine has been recognized for contributing to outstanding innovation in product or systems technology during 1985-86. The Company's "Airflow conveyor & cotton picker dump basket" and "Tractor/implement link to measure true acreage" were named to the "Agricultural Engineering 50 Salute" section within the June issue of Agricultural Engineering.

Virtually all companies making products for food and agriculture are eligible to submit nominations for the honor. Winning products and systems are recognized as "developments that embody the application of new technology or the innovative application of an older technology."

A panel of engineering experts reviewed hundreds of product nominations. The panel selected only those considered most likely to make worthwhile contributions to the advancement of engineering in agriculture.

The products and systems selected for "The AE 50" play an important part as significant developments in the production, processing, research, storage, packaging and transportation of agricultural and food products. They contribute to more cost effective production, added product value and improved quality for consumers.

"The AE 50" innovative developments are chosen by Agricultural Engineering, the magazine which reports on engineering trends, technologies and applications in global agriculture. The magazine is published by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

ASAE is a professional and technical organization of members worldwide interested in engineering knowledge and technology for agriculture, associated industries, and related resources. Headquartered in St. Joseph, Michigan, the Society's membership includes 12,000 members in 50 states and over 100 countries.

Hamilton Bank Ag Appreciation Day

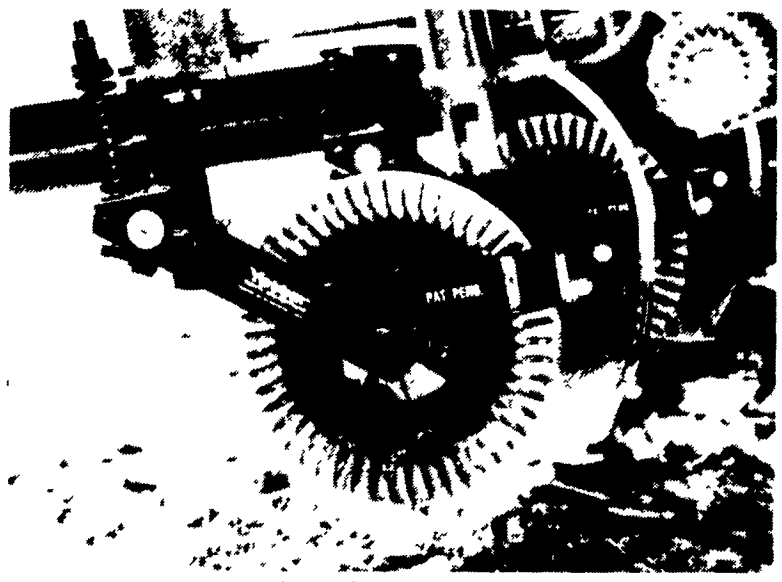
Senior vice president Merritt Marks (left) and Richland office marketing manager Bob Koch admire a collection of antique pedal tractors on display at Hamilton Bank's Ag Appreciation Day on Tuesday. Held at Wengers Farm Machinery, Inc., Lebanon, the event was conceived as a thank-you to the bank's Lebanon County customers. About 175 area farmers attended the chicken barbecue and enjoyed Lloyd Wenger's extensive collection of antique tractors. One of southeastern Pennsylvania's major agricultural lenders, Hamilton Bank services about 900 clients with approximately $60 million in outstanding loans.

Coulters Provide Precise Placement Of Liquid Fertilizer

PEORIA, Ill. – Yetter Liquid Fertilizer Coulters are designed for applying fertilizer in no-till, min-till or conventional operations. They work especially well in trash-filled fields because the 17-inch ripple-bladed coulter slices trash to clear a path for the close-following injection knife.

Corrosion resistant stainless steel tubing formed at the end into a flat rectangle, ¼-inch in width, is shaped to match coulter width and cut a clean, narrow slot. The soil is left virtually intact to prevent wind and water erosion, while placing the fertilizer anywhere from 2½ to 5 inches in depth alongside and below the root zone where it can be taken up by growing seedlings with maximum efficiency.

Heavy-duty 1½-inch spindles are equipped with sealed tapered roller bearings for long, durable service, and all parts are fully greasable. Spring deflection is 5.5 inches and adjustable for down-pressures up to 900 pounds. The narrow alloy steel knives are exceptionally resistant to abrasion and can be adjusted for wear.



Yetter's ripple-blade coulters work especially well in fields with heavy surface debris.

These units come with a versatile bracket for mounting on JD, Kinze, IH, Case IH, White, New Idea and Allis-Chalmers pull type and 3-point hitch planters, grain drills and row crop cultivators.

For information contact Yetter Mfg. Co., Inc., Clochester, IL 62326-0358, phone 800/447-5777.

Seed Corn Protectant Approved For Suppressing Corn Maggot

BUFFALO, N.Y. – Borderland Products has announced that its Borderland Black seed corn protectant is now cleared for use in suppressing the seed corn maggot.

Borderland Black is already widely used by corn growers to protect their seed corn, at planting, from crows and other seed eating birds and as an efficient lubricant that helps reduce planter skips.

With addition of seed corn maggot suppression to the label, growers now have three reasons to utilize this convenient planter-box treatment in their 1987 plantings.

Borderland Black is packaged in 8-ounce cartons, each containing sufficient product to protect one bushel of seed corn following of label directions.

According to Borderland vice-president Arthur C. Reimherr, in 1986, growers used sufficient Borderland Black to protect a swath of corn 500 feet wide and nearly seven thousand miles long.

"We are delighted with grower response", says Reimherr, "and appreciate the many comments we have received from well-satisfied farm customers."

Borderland Black is available through seed companies and farm supply stores in most regions of the country. For information write Borderland Products, P.O. Box 1005, Buffalo, NY 14240.

Tensar Introduces Bird Barrier

MORROW, Ga. – The Tensar Corporation announces the introduction of Tensar Bird Barrier for use in poultry and livestock confinement operations.

Technologically superior to plastic netting or wire, Tensar Bird Barrier is a tough grid product with a tensile strength of 960 pounds per foot lengthwise and 1,640 pounds per foot across its width. There's no rust or sharp wires and it's safe for livestock and poultry.

The high strength, oriented plastic product can be used in poultry pens, hog houses, dairy stalls or weaning-off pens – anywhere ventilation or protection against bird contamination is needed.

"Tensar Bird Barrier is a better value than PVC-coated wire," says Mark Hurlbut, agricultural product manager. "It's rust-free, non-corroding and sunlight resistant; and it is made with impact-resistant polymers that retain strength even in very low temperatures. It also is easy to handle and install, weighing just 38 pounds per four-foot by 150-foot roll, and is quick to clean."

The Tensar Corporation guarantees the product for 10 years from performance failure due to sunlight, humidity, ammonia or uric acid.

Tensar manufactures fencing, shading, soil stabilization and windbreak products in the USA, with distribution throughout North America for agricultural, construction and civil engineering applications. For more information, contact Mark Hurlbut, agricultural product manager, The Tensar Corporation, 1210 Citizens Parkway, Morrow, GA 30260, or call 1-800-845-4453.

Nutrition Can Reduce Lactation Stress

PARADISE – Most dairy cows reach peak production six to eight weeks after freshening. But, nutritional deficiencies during this time could hinder milk production and prevent a cow from reaching peak production by as much as a pound per day, according to John Hess of John J. Hess II Inc. in Paradise.

"Even though a cow's milk production peaks by week five or six, she won't be able to maximize dry matter intake until the 13th or 15th week following freshening," Hess says. "This creates a nutritional imbalance that can drastically lower the lactation curve, possibly causing metabolic or reproductive problems later on."

A decrease in just one pound of milk production at peak could translate into a loss of 200 pounds of milk by the end of the lactation cycle, he says. "For example, if a cow's peak production drops from 66 to 65 pounds per day because of nutritional deficiencies, the producer will lose 200 pounds of milk over the entire lactation period. At $11.50 per hundredweight, this translates into a profit drain of $23 per cow," Hess adds.

The lack of balanced nutrients also may cause excessive weight loss, he notes. "If proper nutrition isn't provided during this crucial period, the cow could be more susceptible to ketosis or milk fever," he says.

To offset these nutritional deficiencies and to minimize lactation stress, the dealer producers feed a highly palatable ration that has the correct protein and nutrient levels to meet production goals.

"Purina's High Octane Top Feed 37 is a highly palatable top-dressed concentrate that can help reduce weight loss and maintain peak milk production," he says. "In fact, recent feeding trials showed an average daily consumption of 9.3 pounds per day, compared to only 5.1 for another top-dressed concentrate."

Results like these can not only improve the cow's production, but can also increase her productive lifetime, he says. "If lactation stress is reduced, the cow will be in better condition for rebreeding, run less risk of encouraging metabolic-related diseases, and continue to be healthy for years to come."

Niebauer Family Dominates Cambria Livestock Shows

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Cambria Co. Correspondent

EBENSBURG — Winning is all in the family with the Niebauers. The children of Jerry and Paul Niebauer, brothers of RD 1 Ebensburg, in Cambria County, enjoyed some friendly competition at the Cambria County Fair and came away with most of the livestock honors.

Jerry's twins Tina and Todd, age 14, came away the big winners. Tina's 1,220-pound Angus steer took the grand champion rosette in both the Baby Beef and Cloverleaf County-Bred steer competitions. Todd rounded out the field with the grand champion trophies for swine and lamb. Tina was also named champion showman and fitter in the Baby Beef show, and Todd was named champion showman in the swine judging.

To round out the honors, younger brother Matt, age 10, took home his share of ribbons in steer and swine competition and was named reserve champion showman and fitter in the swine judging. And not to be outdone by his children, Jerry got serious about the parents' showmanship category in the Cloverleaf beef show and came home with the grand champion award.

The Paul Niebauer children, 17-year-old Mike and 15-year-old Lori, made an excellent showing as well. Lori's 1,100-pound Angus steer was named the reserve grand champion in the Baby Beef show and reserve champion showman in the senior division of the Cloverleaf show. Matt won champion showman honors in the senior division of the Cloverleaf show and grand champion fitter in the swine show.

Noting that she is close to her brothers and her cousins, Tina Niebauer summed up the family honors, saying, "I'm proud of all of us."

Cloverleaf Steer Show

The third annual Cloverleaf County-Bred 4-H Steer Show, held September 3 as part of the Cambria County Fair, drew praise from Judge Glenn Eberly. "The club has made great strides in just a few years," he said. "They show extremely good depth of quality."

Eberly, director of the Meat Animal Evaluation Center in State College, was judging the program for the second year in a row and could offer a comparison from 1985 to 1986 winners. He told the audience that about a dozen of the 35 entries were on a caliber to compete with the best animals in the state.

The Cambria County Fair, unlike other fairs across the state, holds separate shows for county-bred and non-county steers. Results of the fair's livestock events are as follows.

Market Show Entries Sell For $57,000

MARGIE FUSCO
Cambria Co. Correspondent

EBENSBURG — Tina Niebauer is $7,015 closer to her dream of becoming a veterinarian. Her 1220-pound Angus steer, Augie, the grand champion of the Baby Beef 4-H and Cloverleaf County-Bred Beef 4-H Shows at the Cambria County Fair, brought a record-breaking bid of $5.75 a pound in a heated competition. When the gavel fell, Sherri George, owner of Hoss's Restaurant, Johnstown, had purchased the steer after an emotional bidding war with Cambria County commissioner Ron Stevenson. Miss Niebauer's steer sold for $2.50 more per pound than the 1985 grand champion animal.

By the end of the Thursday night sale, auctioneer Chester Davis of Ebensburg had garnered bids for 118 animals for a total of $57,760 in sales. Proceeds from the sale go directly to the 4-H members.

Missy Stineman, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stineman of RD #1, Sidman, took home $3,762.50 when Charles J. Pudliner, Jr., Meats of Johnstown offered a winning bid of $3.50 for the Cloverleaf Show reserve grand champion, a 1075-pound Angus steer. Pudliner's bid was $1.55 higher than the winning bid for the Cloverleaf reserve champion in the 1985 sale.

Lori Niebauer earned $1,705 for her Baby Beef Show reserve champion steer, a 1100-pound Angus, which brought a winning bid of $1.55 a pound from the Riverside Market in Vinco. Total steer sales for 40 animals brought in $40,508, or an average of 91 cents a pound.

Todd Niebauer's grand champion 250-pound Duroc hog brought a winning bid of $3.05 a pound or $762.50 from Hatfield Packing Company. Lore Friedel, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.L. Friedel of Wilmore, received $411 or $1.75 a pound from Charles Pudliner, Jr., for her 235-lb. reserve champion cross-bred hog Forty-seven hogs were auctioned at an average price of $1.07 per pound, bringing in a total of $11,157 35

Todd Niebauer also added $401 50 to his bank account when Don Templeton of Ebensburg produced a winning bid of $3 65 a pound for the youngster's 110-pound cross-bred wether, the fair's grand champion market lamb. Ten-year old Sara Puruczky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Puruczky of Summerhill, took home $190 for her reserve grand champion lamb, a 100-pound [illegible] winning bidder was Mr. Pudliner.

The market lamb sale brought in $2,693.80 for 17 animals. The average price was $1.50 per pound.

Scot Wagner, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner of RD #1, Homer City, earned $501.50 for his grand champion veal calf, a 295-pound Shorthorn bull named Blacky. The winning bid was offered by the Riverside Market in Vinco. John Strittmatter, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Strittmatter of RD 1, Ebensburg, took home $364 for his reserve grand champion Holstein bull veal calf. The winning bid of $1.40 was offered by Mr. Pudliner.

Fourteen veal calves were placed on the block and brought in a total of $3,400.30. The average sale price was 91 cents a pound.

Premier buyer for the sale was Charles Pudliner, who purchased 15 animals for a total of $8,459.31. There were 62 bidders in the sale, 50 of whom purchased animals.

Two animals were donated to local groups. Food for Families in Johnstown received an 84-pound lamb donated by Dan Till of RD 8, Johnstown and the Holsopple Feed Mill. The Presbyterian Home of Johnstown received a 127-pound lamb donated by Ike Hughes of Portage.

5 Million Acres Entered In August Conservation Reserve Signup

HARRISBURG — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has accepted 5,091,618 more acres of highly erodible cropland into the Conservation Reserve Program, Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Peter Myers announced recently.

"We now have almost 9 million acres total from three signups," he said. "Our 5-year goal is to remove 40 to 45 million acres of highly erodible cropland from production for 10 years and with this level of participation, we feel we are well on our way to meeting that objective. It's obvious that more farmers have been seriously weighing the benefits of participating in the Conservation Reserve Program."

In this latest signup, farmers on 45,081 farms had submitted bids for a total of 6,420,964 acres. The accepted bids ranged up to $90 per acre with an average of $64.94 per acre.

In Pennsylvania, a total of 202 farmer bids out of 231 submitted were accepted in the Conservation Reserve Program. The bids cover 7,137 acres of land at an average price of $61.40 per acre.

Annual rental payments will compensate farmers for retiring highly erodible land from crop production. The amount of payment is determined by the bid per acre and the number of accepted acres.

Participants will also receive conservation payments of up to 50 percent of eligible costs of establishing trees and grass on the acreage placed in the reserve. The conservation payments will partially reimburse farmers for the one-time costs of establishing required conservation practices on the cropland.

Myers said land entered into the Conservation Reserve, as directed by the Food Security Act of 1985, will be ineligible for farming for 10 years and must be planted with permanent vegetative cover. "This program will bring many benefits, including the enhancement of wildlife habitat," he said. said.

Farmland signed up to date totals 8,930,655 acres. During the first signup period March 3 to 14, USDA accepted bids to enter 838,356 acres on 10,307 farms into the program. Bids on the signup ranged up to $90 per acre with an average of $41.82.

During the second period, 3,000,681 acres on 22,863 farms were accepted. Accepted bids in this period also ranged up to $90 per acre with an average of $44.23. Additional signup periods for bidding will be announced later.

USDA Contracts For More Grain Storage

WASHINGTON — Under Secretary of Agriculture Daniel G. Amstutz today announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture has contracted for an additional 1,355 covered grain barges in an effort to alleviate the tight storage situation in corn belt states.

Under this and other Commodity Credit Corporation actions, storage problems will be eased by the storage or movement of more than 1.25 billion bushels of grain, particularly corn. Amstutz said this is the estimated amount of space which represents the CCC's share of the expected 1986 grain storage needs.

Other actions the CCC has taken to alleviate grain storage problems resulting from the projected large 1986 grain harvest includes approval by the CCC of 500 million bushels of new, temporary and warehouse emergency storage space, which in addition to barges includes hopper cars and outside storage.

Amstutz said "We are trying our best to beat the fall harvest and assist the farmers and the grain industry during this peak demand period."

These additional barges bring the total number contracted for by the USDA to 2,000 with storage space for 100 million bushels of grain. They were obtained under competitive bids from warehousemen having current Uniform Grain Storage Agreements.

Amstutz said 500 of the barges are already loaded and the remaining 1,500 will be loaded as soon as practicable. The barges are being loaded in the heart of the corn belt, mainly on the upper and mid-Mississippi and the Illinois Rivers to take care of the most critical load-out needs in that area. Some corn will also be stored on barges on the Missouri and Ohio River system.

Temporary and emergency storage space on land is expected to provide for the storage of approximately 400 million bushels of grain, Amstutz said.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

The Farmer Of The 1990's

The exodus of farmers from full-time farming will probably accelerate in the next 10 years. Why? One reason is the continuing surplus of farm commodities in relation to market demand. A second reason is the continuing advances of science, technology, and management techniques that both improve the efficiency of producing a product and add to the surplus. A case in point is the coming growth hormone in the dairy industry. Third is the changing lifestyle of our consumers — more free time which means more time spent in recreation — more concern about physical condition which means dietary needs. A fourth reason may be diluted by the new tax laws — competition from those who do not have to make a profit from their farm business.

Then there is the reasoning that the government can fix anything if they would only pass the right laws; this is coupled with the stupidity of those who make our laws in trying to fix everything and still win votes. Many farmers still refuse to view their farms as businesses that must be run like businesses.

Attitude is a major problem for those who really desire to improve farm income; particularly the feeling that all it takes to succeed as a farmer is "hard work" and the desire to farm. Another problem for many farmers is the vast amount of information a farmer must sift through to decide what piece of information is useful, what is worthless, and what is actually detrimental. Finally, the cost of borrowed money may be higher than the potential return from that money.

When all of this is taken into consideration, it adds up to a major loss of farmers in the next 10 years. The loss will probably exceed the one that happened during the drought years of the mid sixties. Actually Pennsylvania farmers will probably be in better financial shape than farmers from most other areas of the country. Pennsylvania farmers are blessed with basically good soils, favorable climatic conditions, and easy access to major markets for their commodities. Pennsylvania farmers also have alternatives to full-time farming that may help them move from full-time farming to off-farm income work.

Who Will Be The 1990's Farmers

Those who will be farming in the 1990's will be people who have been able to adjust to a new way of farming. They will include those who are willing to accept the fact that they will need an off-farm job to supplement farm income. They will have to be careful that the off-farm income is not consumed by the farm operation, or the off-farm job will not be a viable alternative but just another frustration. Another survivor group will be those who presently have little or no debt and can continue in that category To be truly successful and not just survivors, the members of this group must take advantage of their debt free situation and become top notch managers or they will soon be among the "also rans."

The real future farmers will be those who can learn to be business executives willing to treat their farm and their enterprise industry as a business. They will be able to make decisions based on facts, not emotion. They will probably keep and use extensive records on production functions as well as financial areas. They will know the cost of producing a unit of their commodity under their conditions. They will know how to recognize and use useful advice and information, how to glean the useful parts from the vast pile of available information, and how to discard all of that worthless information and expensive advice. These farmers will be self confident enough to recognize their own weaknesses as well as their strengths. They will know how to set priorities and not fear hiring people who know more in certain technical areas than they do. Most of them will see that being a "financial manager" will be a top priority in the future. They will also recognize that labor management is a major concern of theirs.

To Be Successful You Will Need:

To be a successful farm operator into the 90's you will need the following:

1. Highly efficient production per unit with high quality and sound economics. The combination is a must. Just high production alone is not enough. A dairyman can go broke with a 20,000-pound herd average if the cost of producing that record exceeds the returns, or if the farm family's expectations of family living from the farm exceeds the amount available. Cost control is a must in any business that is to be successful.

2. Detailed and useful records. Financial records are a necessity for cost control, tax management, planning, making changes, analyzing the business, and basic decision making.

3. A regular farm analysis. An analysis is important to any businessman who is interested in improving the weak areas of the business. A good analysis can help the manager of a business project the results of a management change.

Preventing Johnsongrass

Johnsongrass is a very competitive, very costly noxious weed that is gaining a foothold in Pennsylvania. Once established it can spread rapidly from seed and from rhizomes. It can really bite into crop yields. It is very difficult and very costly to control. Therefore, preventive efforts are very worthwhile!

One way Johnsongrass spreads from farm to farm and from field to field is from seeds carried by harvesting equipment. Because of this, choose carefully who you hire to do your harvesting for you. Preferably it should be someone who does not harvest Johnsongrass infested fields.

Johnsongrass seeds are very hard. They can lie in the soil for several years, waiting for the opportune time to germinate. Thus, it is necessary to be persistent in control efforts.

There is some belief that some of the seeds survive fermentation and digestion, and that some of the infestations may have been spread by "contaminated" manure; perhaps some of these seeds can spread when Johnsongrass infested feeds get into the bedding and bypass the digestion process. Nevertheless, it is a good idea not to purchase Johnsongrass infested feeds if it can be avoided.

Feeding Uncured Silage

Corn ensiling time is close at hand. This is a time of the year when many dairymen experience cows going off feed as they start feeding newly-ensiled, but, uncured silage.

Cows can experience digestive upsets, and declines in fat tests and production. It is difficult to get cows to recover fully from these setbacks, and the problem can be very costly to dairymen.

One way to prevent the problem is to feed only cured silage. You will need a supply of cured silage to feed from while the silo is being filled and while the silage is going through its curing process. Curing will take about two weeks. To accomplish this, you may need an additional silo, a stack or a bag. It requires some planning plus a little extra effort and cost, but the benefits will probably far outweigh the costs.

Ammoniated Corn Silage

Penn State Dairy Specialist, Jud Heinrichs, points out that "ammonia treatment of corn silage has proven to be an effective and the most economical means of preserving corn silage while supplementing the crude protein value of corn silage." It is something worth considering by dairymen who pay attention to details.

Used at the rate of about seven pounds per ton of silage it can elevate the crude protein level of the silage from 8 or 9 percent, up to about 13 or 14 percent. It can reduce silage dry matter losses 4 to 6 percent and energy losses by 6 to 10 percent. It helps protect the natural protein in corn silage from degradation by an estimated 20 to 40 percent; in untreated silage, about half of the natural protein is degraded to non-protein nitrogen, NPN, during fermentation. Lactic acid levels in silage increase about 20 to 30 percent. In the bunk, ammonia inhibits the growth of molds and yeast and helps prevent silage from heating when exposed to air.

Ammonia has some advantages, but it also has some risks. Anhydrous ammonia is a toxic gas that must be handled with care. Ammonia is a non-protein nitrogen.

The cow's rumen microflora need a supply of readily available protein from sources such as NPN and soluble protein, however excess [illegible] of NPN and soluble protein can be toxic to the cow. So, the trick is to work closely with your nutrition and make other ration adjustments so as to arrive at the right balance.

When using ammonia, corn should be ensiled at 60 to 70 percent moisture, and ammonia should be applied uniformly at the rate of about seven pounds per ton of 35 percent DM silage. Test the silage frequently for protein content. Switch the herd to ammonia treated silage gradually over a period of about 2 to 3 weeks.

Testing

Many of you will soon be harvesting the majority of the feed that will carry you through the winter and to next year's harvesting season. The quality of feed you put up now is the quality your herd will have to put up with for a long period of time. Hopefully it's of good enough quality to entice good production.

One thing that affects quality is moisture at time of harvest. It would probably be wise to check the moisture content at harvest time occasionally. Moisture testers used for this purpose don't need to be real accurate, since the moisture content of the crop is changing rapidly. The main thing you are interested in is getting a quick estimate of moisture.

The time when accuracy of moisture readings is important is at feeding time; it's necessary for the proper balancing of rations.

Because of the importance of moisture to forage and feed quality and to ration balancing, a moisture tester is one tool every good dairyman should have.

This is a year to be testing forages frequently. In Lancaster, we've had a rather unusual growing season — a dry spring and lots of rain in July. The quality of forages grown under drouthy conditions is generally higher than that grown under wet conditions. Because of the rain delays, some of our hay crop was overmature when harvested. Some of the hay may be musty or moldy because it was too wet.

The fermentation of some of our rain-pelted, dirt-splashed, and hail-damaged crops may be different than normal due to a change in the microorganism population on the crop being ensiled.

Because of some short stalks, the ear to stalk ratio on some corn crops may be different. Poor pollination and ear development in other fields may have the same effect.

The point is, you may have a lot of variation in the qualilty of feeds you'll be using, and the quality this year may be different from that of last year. To be more sure, test frequ[illegible] — as needed.

Dessicants and Preservatives

As we look back into the rainy month of July think about how much hay you might have been able to save if you could have gotten it harvested one day earlier or if you could have safely baled it at a slightly higher moisture level. Would a chemical drying agent, dessicant, or a hay preservative have helped you: 1. avoid some crop losses? 2. to harvest the crop at a more desirable maturity for better quality feed? 3. or permitted you to get the crop off in time to make an additional cutting possible without jeopardizing the stand? If you put up some off quality feed as a result of the rainy season, how much will this affect production, and what will be the cost of this? How much will it cost you to purchase feed to replace what you did not get harvested?

These are difficult questions to answer. Nevertheless, I think we need to reflect on them as we try to evaluate whether dessicants and preservatives have a place in our management program. The costs have to be weighed against the benefits, and we have to be careful not to let one bad month affect our decisions; consider how often you experience inclement weather at harvest time.

Fall Alfalfa Management

The question is often asked "when should I take off the last cutting of alfalfa" The old guideline was no closer than 45 days to the first expected killing frost — whenever that is. If the first killing frost was October 15, that means not cutting after September 1. However, recent research has resulted in revised guidelines.

If fertility is good, if the more modern resistant varieties of alfalfa are grown, and if the stand has not been stressed by insect injury, weed competition, poor growing conditions or too frequent cutting, then, the date of the last cutting is of little importance, especially if one or more cuttings have been allowed to come into bloom. If the stand has been stressed and if you really want to save the stand, then comply with the old guideline.

Another question asked is, "can I remove a cutting after a killing

Simmental Names Trait Leaders

BOZEMAN, Mont. – The American Simmental Association has announced that 244 purebred Simmental bulls have been designated as Genetic Trait Leaders for 1987. In all, 99 bulls qualified as trait leaders in more than one category.

"These trait leaders are selected on the basis of their performance in growth and maternal traits," said ASA Executive Vice President Earl B. Peterson.

Trait leaders are recognized in seven traits: calving ease of first calf; birth weight; weaning weight; yearling weight; maternal calving ease; maternal weaning weight; and maternal milking ability.

"Evaluation of 812,942 progeny was performed," Peterson said. "Genetic Trait Leaders represent the outstanding sires from among those that were analyzed in compilation of the 1987 Sire Selector."

"A bull must be in the top 10 percent of all active bulls evaluated to qualify as a Trait Leader," Peterson explained. "He must also have an effective progeny number of 50 or greater. Thus, both superior performance and accuracy are considered."

ABR Sir Arnold G809 has become ASA's first five category trait leader, qualifying in calving ease, first calf; birth weight; weaning weight; yearling weight; and maternal calving ease for first calf. One year ago, ABR Sir Arnold G809 was listed in four traits.

Five Simmental sires earned Trait Leader status in four different categories. They are: Baron MM 4378; Bold; HCB Caufi 02C; Langdon's Dovea Hunter; and Uslar.

The 1987 Sire Selector will be mailed in October to ASA members. Copies are available to nonmembers at a cost of $5 each by contacting the American Simmental Association.

frost?" If the stand is vigorous, you can probably do this without jeopardizing the stand. The recommendation is to cut high so as to reduce damage to the crown and to leave some stubble to help catch snow for winter cover. If the stand is a new seeding, or if the stand is stressed, cutting after frost is not recommended.

ABS Imports Zebu Semen From Brazil

DEFOREST, Wisc. – Zebu semen from Brazil is now available through American Breeders Service (ABS). ABS is the first U.S. company to import Zebu semen from this South American country.

"Brazil is the world's best source of Bos Indicus pure strain bulls," says Keith Vander Velde, ABS manager of beef programs. "The country has the most highly selected and second largest population of Zebu in the world." Besides individual performance records on the bulls, the Brazilian breed association issued a sire summary for the first time in 1985.

This Zebu semen importation is possible due to a recently enacted health protocol between the United States and Brazil. ABS worked with Fundacao Bradesco- Pecplan, the largest Zebu A.I. center in the world, to secure the semen.

"This is very significant to beef breeders and will impact on the Bos Indicus breeds like the European breed importations of the early 1970's," comments ABS's manager of beef programs.

For more information on the Zebu bulls, call 1-800-ABS-STUD or call your local ABS Representative.

SILAGE CONDITIONER PRESERVATIVE and NUTRIENT BALANCER

MOPRO
THE PROFIT MAKER

100
LIQUID SILAGE FORTIFIER

has been used by progressive farmers for over 17 years. University tested and proven MOPRO Liquid Silage Fortifier is formulated to balance the major mineral and protein deficiencies of silages. It conserves dry matter by slowing down the heat of fermentation and also prevents loss from mold and rot after being removed from the silo or trench. MOPRO is added at the time of ensiling and is applied by metering equipment with very little handling cost. MOPRO will not corrode mild steel tanks or brass fittings and has no free ammonia odor to irritate the eyes or skin. MOPRO is a homogeneous solution of ammonia salts, urea, cane molasses, and minerals (except salt and calcium) in an efficient liquid carrier. It provides nitrogen for improved fermentation in the rumen and contains a mineral balance of phosphorous, magnesium, and trace elements including selenium. MOPRO 100 will give a resulting silage of up to 14.3% protein.

Purina® Maxi-Tech™ 40 brand Milking Concentrate.

The highest-energy, completely balanced protein supplement you can buy.

Why Is Maxi-Tech™ 40 brand

A "BEST VALUE" Concentrate?

TAKE A MINUTE TO READ THIS...

Now there's a high-energy concentrate designed especially for dairy producers with the very highest management abilities and production goals. It's Purina® Maxi-Tech™ brand 40, the new milking concentrate that makes the very most of your herd's production.

The secret is its unique combination of ingredients — featuring high-energy content, optimum protein sources, minerals, vitamins and specially blended macronutrients. Together, they produce the most concentrated nutrient package on the market today. Their effect is synergistic — by promoting better digestion of all the proper nutrients, new Maxi-Tech 40 helps your cows produce to their fullest genetic capacity while maintaining their body condition.

One thing that's reduced is the management time involved in your feeding program. All the minerals and vitamins your cows need are included in new Maxi-Tech 40. And for extra performance, NPN has also been included.

So whether you grind and mix or feed a total mixed ration, you can help your cows milk to their limit without draining them with Purina's new Maxi-Tech 40.

Not only that, but new Maxi-Tech 40 helps maintain the milk composition, too. It's able to increase your milk yield without depressing butterfat levels. New Maxi-Tech 40 can really pay off during the stressful early lactation period. Unlike other concentrates, it boosts your cow's milk production — but not at the cow's expense. It keeps her in great shape so she can breed back faster while she's producing to her capacity. Her life-time production is greatly improved. And so is your income potential.
